General Hints on Vienna, its Suburbs, and Environs.

(The letters and Arabic figures in parenthesis behind the buildings or other objects indicate, where they are to be found on the annexed map of the town.)

Vienna, the great metropolis of the Austrian Empire, is situated at the foot of the Kahlenberg, on the southern bank of the Danube, at an elevation (near the gate of Mariahilf — B. 6) of 205 Metres above the level of the sea, and at a distance of twenty (German) miles from the Hungarian frontier. The ancient city rises on a sloping plain which declines towards the river and extends along one arm of the Danube called the „Vienna Canal“, whilst its suburbs mostly occupy a higher position. The Vienna Canal, in conjunction with another arm of the Danube called „Kaiserwasser“ (imperial waters), forms an islet on which the suburb „Leopoldstadt“ has its seat.

The main stream of the Danube passes Vienna at a distance of half a german mile, but is actually being regulated at an expence of 25,000.000 fl. and will thereby reach the town; a vast enterprise, begun in 1870, very worthy looking at.

The situation of Vienna, in a great valley, between a northern and southern range of mountains, renders the town accessible to unpleasant high easterly and north-easterly winds.

The most comprehensive and beautiful view of Vienna is indisputably to be obtained from the top of St. Stephen's steeple, although surveyed from the Cupola of St. Charles, the town presents greater number of most picturesque groups of buildings. From the summit of the „Wienerberg“, upon which stands the monument called „Spinnerin am Kreuz“, a general view of the town may likewise be obtained and, viewed from different points of the Kahlengebirge, as from the Klause, near Nussdorf, the „Himmel“, the „Krapfenwäldchen“ and the „Leopoldsberg“, (three heights in the vicinity of Grinzing), the whole ensemble of the town may be obtained to great advantage.

The circumference of the town with its surrounding suburbs, amounts to 19.000 Metres and is precised by a wall 4 Metres high and a ditch extending as far as the Spittelau and Erdberg, where the soil at once declines rapidly towards the river.

The ancient or internal City occupies as nearly as possible the centre of the town and covers an area of more then 2,800.000  Metres. It was formerly separated from the suburbs by ramparts 16 Metres high, furnished with 11 bastions and a deep ditch surrounding them. Between the latter and the suburbs lay the Glacis, a vast space of open ground overgrown with grass and planted with trees, which was, in summer, a very pleasant place of resort for promenaders, nurses, and frolicking children. — These fortifications have been done away with since 1857, and it is owing to this change, that Vienna has so recently been embellished and now possesses a street, the Ringstrasse, which, in regularity and magnificence, is certainly not surpassed by any other in Europe.

The Lastenstrasse forms the boundary of the town with the suburbs. The latter are divided into nine districts, viz: I, The City; II, the Leopoldstadt; III. the Landstrasse; IV, the Wieden; V, Margarethen; VI, Mariahilf; VII, Neubau; VIII, the Josephstadt; IX, the Alsergrund. Each of these districts is recognisable by the special colour in which the numbers of the houses it contains are painted. The respective numbers of the houses run from Stephen's square, with Nr. 1 to the left and Nr. 2 to the right.

Of 12 old gates once belonging to the City, two only have remained: the Burgthor (gate of the palace) (D. 5.) and the Francis-Joseph gate (Franz-Josephsthor) (E. 4.) between the two buildings of the Post-Office and the Custom-House.

An hour's walk will easily take the stranger through the entire „Ringstrasse“, for the city contains only 1300 buildings, 140 streets and 20 squares, one of which the „Hof“ is the largest and measures 135 Metres in length by 73 Metres in breadth. The most remarkable squares besides this are: The „Hoher Markt“ (High Market), the „Josephsplatz“ (Joseph square), the „Burgplatz“ (square of the Palace), „Neuer Markt“ (New-Market), „Graben“ (ditch), „Stephansplatz“ (Stephen's square), St. Michael's square, the „Judenplatz“ (Jews' square), the „Freiung“ etc.

Notwithstanding recent embellishments, the streets of the ancient town are generally narrow, but very cleanly kept. As regards public buildings in the gothic style we observe the Cathedral of St. Stephen's, the Minorites Church, and the Church of Maria Stiegen, which date from the middle ages; — the Church of the Redeemer (Votiv-Kirche), the Church of the Lazarists (Mariahilf suburb), the Church of St. Elizabeth (Wieden suburb), and the parish church of the formerly so called suburb „Weissgärber“. The construction of these four churches, belongs to modern times, and Vienna is indebted to the good taste and skill of architect Fischer of Erlach, for the many fine buildings in the Italo-French style with which, under the reign of Charles VI, he enriched the town. After a long series of years, during which architecture was slumbering, it was at last roused out of its state of torpor and has, within the last fifteen years, produced great numbers of public monuments and edifices worthy of a large Metropolitan town.

Characteristics of the town are the many court-passages which establish shortnings between different streets, so that those who are acquainted with them can greatly abridge the length of their perambulations through the town.

The most fashionable, lively and crowded streets of the town are: the Ringstrasse, the Graben, Kohlmarkt, Stephansplatz, Rothenthurmstrasse, Kärntnerstrasse and adjacent streets. It is there that the finest shops, the best-frequented cafés, the handsomest carriages, and the fashions of the day, are to be seen to great advantage; but it is in the Praterstrasse where, especially on sundays and holidays, the different classes of the people may be seen flocking to the Prater, the Hydepark of Vienna, and the circulation here can fairly bear comparison to the crowded thoroughfares of London or Paris.

The suburbs have all been rebuilt during the two last centuries (owing to their having been burnt down by the Turks during the siege of 1683); they are therefore more regular and their streets generally broader and straighter than those of the old city. The Neubau, Josephstadt and the principal street of the suburb Mariahilf deserve on that score to be noticed, and the traveller who, entering the town, chances to drive through the latter street, conceives, when he has reached the bottom of it, a very favourable notion of the general aspect of Vienna. The Palace gate stands straight before him and above this is to be seen the ancient Imperial Palace, the Mansion of Archduke Albert and, towering up far above the roofs of the adjacent buildings, the magnificent steeple of St. Stephen's Church. To the West, in the background, mountains are to be seen; while to the east the beautiful and imposing Church of St. Charles closes a panorama which, after dusk, is illuminated by thousands of lights.

The greatest industrial and commercial activity is to be found in the three suburbs Wieden, Mariahilf and Leopoldstadt. Here are to be seen vast numbers of shops and warehouses; but it is principally in the last suburb that are warehoused all goods arriving by water and by the northern Railway. The weavers and spinners have their seat in Mariahilf; the manufactories of shawls, ribbons etc. in the Neubau, and on both sides of the Vienna Canal are the wood-yards, which supply the whole town with fire-wood.

In 1598 the Vienna canal, which originates in the great arm of the Danube at Nussdorf, was rendered navigable by Baron Ferdinand Hoyos. 9 bridges establish the communication between the two banks of the river. The principal of these are: The Brigittabrücke (D. 1.); the Maria Theresibrücke, (E. 3.) a new iron suspension-bridge leading to the Augarten; the Carlsbrücke, (E. 3.) a suspension-bridge for foot passengers; the Ferdinandsbrücke (F. 4.), leading to the principal thoroughfares in the Leopoldstadt. Between the Stubenring and Leopoldstadt is to be seen the Aspern bridge (F. 4.) constructed by the engineers Fillunger and Schnirch on the plan of the latter, under the direction of professor Rebhann. Proceeding a little lower down, the stranger comes to the Francis bridge (G. 3.) constructed with iron-wire; between the Landstrasse and the Prater there are two other suspension-bridges lately constructed, called Sophienbrücke (H. 5.) and Schlachthausbrücke (I. 6.) and not far from the Francis bridge, is to be seen a beautiful suspension-bridge 83 Metres in length, which unites the Northern to the Southern Railway.

Among the most remarkable bridges across the „Wien“ are to be mentioned: the iron Neville bridge (C. 7.) uniting the two suburbs Mariahilf and Margarethen; the suspension-bridge between the suburbs Mariahilf and Wieden constructed in 1830; the Leopold bridge (of iron, Neville's system, 1860) in the proximity of the „Wien theatre“ (D. 6); the Elizabeth bridge (E. 5.), (stone) built by architect Förster between the years 1850 and 1854, is of a beautiful and at the same time massif structure. Its three arches present an opening 15 Metres wide, and are supported by pillars 8.5 Metres high. Another fine stone bridge of recent construction, the Schwarzenberg-Brücke (E. 5.), is thrown across the „Wien“, and unites the square of the same name with the streets Rennweg and Heugasse, at the Wieden. This bridge was constructed in 1865 on the plan of architect Hornbostel and is remarkable both for its solidity and the elegance of its form. A very fine iron bridge has been constructed in 1871, the Tegetthoff-Brücke (E. 5.), leading from the Johannessgasse, near the Town-Park to the Landstrasse. The Stuben-Brücke (F. 4.) (stone) between Wollzeile street and the suburb Landstrasse, built in 1400, is the oldest construction of that kind in Vienna. The last bridge across the Wien is the Radetzky Bridge (F. 4.), a stone construction completed in 1855.

Besides the bridges already enumerated, there are some other wooden bridges of various sizes across the Wien, according to the importance of the streets between which they form communication.

The People of Vienna.

The population of Vienna and suburbs was in 1872 911.000 inhabitants, (about 18.000 houses.) The established religion is the catholic, but there are 20.000 protestants and more than 40.000 jews.

The Viennese were once noted as a more eating, drinking, good-natured and hospitable people than any other in Germany, and Vienna was long considered the „el Dorado“ of a careless race who liked „to enjoy life“ and had no objection to other people doing the same. The pleasures of the table, good music, and dancing, were highly prized. Vienna of former days has now greatly changed, and the Viennese have assumed as earnest and reserved a deportment as the inhabitants of most other large European Cities. There are, however, many places of amusement, especially in the suburbs and environs of Vienna, which enjoy great popularity.

Vienna is very commercial, its tradesmen being reckoned among the best in Germany; and the bustle in its streets is not equalled even in an English trading town. The art of effecting a safe passage through some of the principal thoroughfares on foot, amidst a crowd of carriages, hackney-coaches, loaded waggons, and other vehicles, there being in some instances but a very narrow foot-pavement, is said to remain a mystery for those who have had the most extensive London and Paris experience.

The language of the people of Vienna consists in a dialect greatly at variance with the German spoken in upper Germany. The better classes, particularly when speaking to strangers, express themselves in good German; but this seems to be an exertion, and they will soon be heard to relapse into some kind of unaffected dialect by far not so bad as that spoken by the lower classes, although by no means so correct as it ought to be. The children of the Austrian aristocracy are taught French and not seldom English since their earliest youth, and the better classes of tradesmen follow their example. Thus it is of no rare occurrence to meet with young people who have as yet never quitted the paternal roof, and are though possessed of no small degree of fluency in two, three, and even four languages. Music, drawing, and painting, are not overlooked, and in most families, education is carefully attended to.

As regards national costumes, Vienna can boast of displaying as great a variety of them as there are different nations comprised in the whole empire; to these we may add others belonging to the Greeks, Turks, and Polish jews, which latter, by the by, is not very picturesque.

It is a remarkable fact, that in proportion to the number of the inhabitants of Vienna, street-mendicity has been so effectually checked, that tattered clothes and haggard faces are seldom to be met with during daytime, a circumstance entirely owing to the unrelenting exertions of the police, which may be annoverated among the well-organized institutions of Austria.

The Diet of Lower Austria

is composed of 66 members, of whom 63 are elected members. The Archbishop of Vienna, the Bishop of St. Pölten and the Rector Magnificus of the University, by right of the high position which they occupy, enjoy the privileges of elected members. The meetings of the Diet are held in the hall of States of Lower Austria, Herrengasse 13.

Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Aldermen of Vienna. Wipplingerstrasse 8.

This Council consists of 120 elected members, one third of whom must be annually re-elected. The Mayor himself is re-elegible every three years by the Council of Aldermen. The meetings are held publicly.

The Clergy.

Vienna is the seat of a Roman Catholic Archbishop, who bears the title of Prince and resides at Rothenthurmstrasse 2. It has besides a General Vicar and a Metropolitan Chapter (St. Stephen's Square).

The united and the dissenting Greeks form two different communities. The former have their church in Dominican Square; the latter have two churches, one in Fleischmarkt the other in Hafnersteig. The Protestants form likewise two congregations: the Lutherians belonging to the Augsburgian Creed having four parsons, and those belonging to the Reformed Helvetican Creed, who have only two parsons. Divine service is performed for the Lutherians in the church once belonging to the Dorothean nuns, 18 Dorothy street, while for the reformed it is performed at Nr. 16 in the same street. There is a second Lutheran church at Gumpendorf (a suburb).

There are besides various national churches, for instance for the French: St. Anne's; for the Italians: the Minorites'; for the Bohemians: Maria-Stiegen; for the Poles: the Redeemer's; for the Hungarians: St. John's. The English and Russians have chapels attached to their respective embassies.

Churches.

A few bricks, a few old fragments, medals, and other remnants of ancient times, are the only legacies bequeathed us by the Roman Municipium of Vindobona, the usual station of the tenth legion and favorite residence of Cesar, a spot on which Marcus Aurelius breathed his last. These are not mere inanimate stones, but a long series of traditions which remind us of Faviana, that palace of the kings of the Rugii, the place of abode of St. Severin, which was made to a Bishopric as early as 500 years after Christ. Tradition ascribes to that period the little church of St. Rupert, founded by two disciples of that Saint in 740 and which has since been completely restored. To the time of Charlemagne is ascribed the construction of St. Peter's church (822) and it was also at about that time that the foundations of another little church, known under the name of Maria Stiegen, built on the declivity of a hillock which formed one of the banks of the river, were laid down. It must, however, be mentioned that not one of these churches has come down to us without its primitive structure having undergone considerable alterations.

St. Stephen's Cathedral. This splendid pile, founded by Henry Jasomirgott of Babenberg in 1144 is one of the finest monuments of the middle-ages.

Far from offering to view a symmetrical ensemble, constructed on one and the same plan, and finished in all its minutest details with the most exact precision, this cathedral displays the greatest variety of forms imaginable in its gothic ornaments, beginning with the coarsest and ending with the finest and most elegant. Its dome, which counts 31 lofty windows and 5 porches, is constructed in the shape of a latin cross in large hewn stones; it is 108 M. long, its greatest width is 70 M.; the height of the nave up to its greatest elevation is 27 Metres. The whole roof is covered with coloured tiles imitating enamel. The west side-front of the church, the Giant portal (the main entrance), and the two octogone towers called „Heidenthürme“ (heathen towers) belong to the period of their founder (1144). The south side-front with its tower sufficiently indicates what this huge pile would have looked like, had it been constructed after the plan of Rodolph III, the founder of „Neubau“ (1359). The good taste, magnificence, and sprightliness of the beautifully executed roses on the windows, the perfection of the two counter-forts and of the carved work on the pediment, as well as of the wonderful tower itself, give us a correct idea of what the whole pile would have looked like. On the outside the dome is ornamented with various groups of figures interesting, partly because they represent historical facts, partly as a specimen of the art of the times. The handsomest porch is on the north side beside the Chapel of the Cross (Kreuz-Kapelle).

The completed tower on the South side has ever been an object of universal admiration. There is certainly nothing in all Europe that can be compared to it, the more so as its vast dimensions are most artistically concealed by splendid clusters of small pyramidal ornaments and towerlets. The spire, which at one time inclined much to one side, was removed in 1839 and replaced in 1842. To effect the necessary repairs, however, iron had been used instead of stone, and a short space of time sufficed to show that the combination of the two materials was not judicious. The consequence of it was a new restoration of the spire. It was again removed in 1860 from little above the church clock, the reconstruction began under the direction of Architect Leop. Ernst, who had completed years before the carved pediment of the windows and was completed by the renowned Architect F. Schmidt in 1864.

The lofty spire has an elevation of 138 M. Its culminating point can be reached, first by a winding staircase numbering 533 stone steps, and then by a ladder. The splendid view obtainable from the top of the spire more than compensates for the fatigue attending its troublesome ascension.

About half way up the belfrey is the place allotted to the fire-bell. Here are men whose constant occupation it is to watch day and night over the town and its environs, and whenever a fire breaks out, it is their duty to give the first alarm. During day-time, they simply ring the bell and hoist up a red flag; — at night they put up a light in the direction in which the fire is apparent, and at the same time by aid of an electric telegraph information is given immediately to the fire offices, — A little higher up is to be seen the stone bench on which, according to the inscription above it, Count Starhemberg, the brave defensor of Vienna, used to sit and watch the progress and movements of the Turkish troops. It is from thence that, on the morning of the 13th September 1683, he saw the combined forces of the Duke de Lorraine and of King Sobieski, who assisted in the deliverance of Vienna, take possession of the heights of the Kahlenberg. — The large bell was cast from 180 cannons taken from the Turks, and weighs 17.700 Kilogr.

The belfrey on the north side has not been completed. The little bell which surmounts it, was added to it in 1579.

The interior of this vast church is divided into three naves and adorned with 18 insulated pillars and 18 pilasters. Its aspect is very grand although somewhat impaired by the 38 modern altars it possesses, and which greatly contrast with the loftiness of its gothic architecture.

The high altar constructed by James Bock (1639 till 1647) is decorated with a beautiful painting (the Lapidation of St. Stephen) by Tobias Bock, and another, representing the virgin Mary by Pötsch.

The wooden pews on each side of the choir are beautifully carved. To the right of the main choir is a smaller one called „Of the Passion“, where a crucifixion by Sandrard, a St. Thecla by Hempel (1844) and the wonderful marble Sarcophagus of Emperor Frederic III, begun by Nicholas Lerch of Strassburg and completed by Michael Dichter in 1513 may be seen. The same is ornamented with 240 figures and 37 coats-of-arms. — At the entrance to the upper sacristy may be seen the most ancient specimen of sculpture still extant in Vienna, i. e. the tomb of Albert III († 1395), and that of his consort Elizabeth.

One of the principal ornaments of the nave is a pulpit (1430) whose sculptured ornaments by Anton Pilgram in stone are of great merit. Underneath it stands the bust of Pilgram, the architect of the church, represented as if looking out of a window.

The following monuments deserve likewise to be mentioned: The tombs of Eugene of Savoy and of the historian Cuspinian († 1529), that of Rodolph IV († 1365), the founder of part of the church, and those of the Cardinals Khlesel, Kollonitsch, and Trautson (by Donner).

The subterranean part of the church consists of 30 large vaults. Rodolph caused another vault to be added to the above number, which was destined to receive the last remains of the members of the reigning house, and in which are deposited the ashes of Rodolph IV, Albert III, Albert IV, William († 1406) etc.

St. Anna's, St. Anne's Street. There was already a chapel here in 1320 for the Pilgrims. In 1415 it became a church and in 1582 the Jesuits took possession of it. Now the convent of the Jesuits belongs to the Academy of fine arts, which appropriated it for its collections, and uses some of its premises as school-rooms.

St. Augustin's, Augustin Street in the vicinity of Joseph's square. It was built by Frederic the Handsome in 1327 in accomplishment of a vow he had made during his captivity in the castle of Trausnitz. Its structure is remarkably regular and well-proportioned and contains a master-piece of sculpture, the tomb of the Archduchess Christine of Saxe Teschen, one of the most celebrated works of Canova. In the vault are to be seen the tombs of the Emperor Leopold II by Zauner, that of Field-Marshal Daun, and that of the celebrated physician van Swieten. In the Loretto Chapel are preserved in silver urns the hearts of the deceased members of the imperial family. This chapel was founded by Eleanor of Mantoua, the consort of Ferdinand II. It was in this church that, on the occasion of the siege of Vienna being raised, King Sobieski caused a Te Deum to be sung. Here is still to be seen a ring, once belonging to Gustavus Adolphus, slain in the battle of Lützen. Ferdinand II affixed this ring to the picture of the Virgin.

The tower that had been burnt down during the insurrection of 1848 was rebuilt in 1852. In the convent attached to this church lived and died the celebrated preacher Abraham a Sancta Clara. It was also here that the Poet Zacharias Werner breathed his last (1823).

 The Minorites' Church, formerly Maria-Schnee (Mary of the Snow), in the Minorites' Square, was founded by Ottokar of Bohemia in 1276. The Emperor

Joseph II removed the Minorites to the suburb Alservorstadt (1783) and made this church over to an Italian congregation, who now uses it. It was restored between the years 1783 and 1786, but unluckily during that time it was divested of one of the most precious monuments of the middle-ages, i. e. the tomb of the Duchess Blanche (14th century). It contains a nice monument in remembrance of the poet Metastasio, by Loccardi. — Italian sermons are preached here.

The Church of Maria Stiegen, Salvatorgasse, in the proximity of Wipplinger Street, one of the oldest and most interesting churches of Vienna, was built between the years 1395 and 1412 in the strictest gothic style. It was renovated in 1820. The window panes, painted by Mohn, are interesting. The tower 57 M. high, ending in the shape of a flower chalice well merits some attention. — On sundays and holidays sermons in the Bohemian language are delivered in this church.

The Court Chapel, founded by Frederic IV (1449), stands now on the foundations of a chapel which Rodolph in his days had caused to be constructed. Maria Theresia had it restored, and it now possesses a beautiful crucifix by Donner. Here can be heard the best sacred music in Vienna. The imperial family attends divine service in this chapel on sundays and holidays; in winter, at eleven o'clock.

St. Michael's, Michael Square, belongs to the 13th century. This church has often been repaired, but has still a few remnants of gothic architecture to show, which contrast singularly with the modern alterations it has undergone. The picture of the virgin which decorates the high altar is a Greek painting. Metastasio († 1782), the poet laureate, is buried here.

St. Rupert's, Kienmarkt, is said to be the oldest church in Vienna, and to have been founded by the saint of the same name, in 740. It has undergone frequent repairs. The window-panes are painted by Mohn; — the baptistery is of the year 1500.

St. Salvator's, in Salvator Street, near the town-hall, was founded in 1289. It was enlarged in 1360. — Its porch supported by columns dates from the 16th century.

The Church of the Knights of the Teutonic Order, Singerstrasse, was built by Schifferring of Nördlingen in 1326. It contains a beautiful altar of the XV century by Wawere of Mecheln; a great variety of escutcheons, banners, and ancient tombs. The ornaments in the interior of this church appertained to the period of the quaint style (style baroque); and, save the windows, no trace of the original architecture was apparent until, in 1865 architect M. Lippert undertook to restore it to its primitive style.

The Capuchins Church, New-Market, commenced in 1619 and finished 1622 by Emperor Ferdinand II, is a very simple structure. It is only remarkable for its imperial vault, consisting of a long archway, lined with coffins on each side, and enclosed by an iron gate. It is open to the public on All-Souls-day (2<sup>d</sup> November); strangers may easily obtain admittance at other times. The most remarkable coffins are those of the Empress Maria-Theresia and her imp. Consort (1755 by B. Moll); of Joseph I and Joseph II, of Matthias, of Emperor Francis I, and the Duke of Reichstadt.

St. Peter's, in the square of the same name, dates from 1700 and was built under the reign of Leopold I on the model of St. Peter's at Rome by Fischer of Erlach. The leaden statues on the porch are by Kohl, its frescoes by Rothmeyer and Babiena, the high altar is by Altomonte. Here is to be seen the tomb of Wolfgang Lazius, the historian († 1565).

The Church of our Lady of the Scots, on the Freiung, was built in 1155 and made over to Benedictine monks who came from Scotland in 1158. In 1418 it was finally occupied by German monks of that order. The structure of this church in its present form, dates from 1642—1650; it was entirely destroyed during the siege of the Turks (1683), but rebuilt in 1690. It contains several interesting tombs. Here are preserved the last remains of Duke Henry Jasomirgott, and those of the gallant defender of Vienna, Count Rüdiger of Starhemberg.

The Church of the Dissenting Greeks, old Fleischmarkt, was built in 1782 and renovated in the Byzantine style by architect Hansen in 1858. The exterior of this church is overladen with gilt ornaments. The paintings on its front are by Rahl. The entry and interior are beautifully decorated. This church belongs to the Austrian subjects of the Greek persuasion. For Turkish subjects of this confession, there is another place of worship (St. George's) on Hafnersteig.

The Church of the United Greeks (St. Barbara), in Dominican Square, was built in 1654 and repaired in 1852. The church is richly decorated.

The Lutheran Church and the Calvinist were opened, the former in 1784, the latter in 1785. They stand in close proximity to one another in the Dorotheergasse.

Besides these churches, there are about 20 Catholic Chapels in the city; an English Chapel at the English Embassy, and in the „Hôtel Imperial“, Kärnthnerring (formerly palace of the Duke of Württemberg) and a Russian one at the Russian Embassy.

The following are the principal parish churches in the suburbs.

The Church of St. Charles Borromeus (Carlskirche) at the Wieden, Alleegasse (E. 6.), was founded by the Emperor Charles VI in 1716, and built by Martinelli on the model of Fischer of Erlach; it was completed in 1737. Its front, surmounted by an imposing cupola, has at each side a colossal column 33 M. high. These columns contain the bells, and the winding basreliefs on them represent different episodes out of the life of the saint.

The Parish Church of Altlerchenfeld (B. 4.) was commenced in 1848, after the plan of architect

Müller, who died in the prime of life, before having had the satisfaction of seeing his work completed.

The structure of this church, built with bricks, is in the new Roman style, inclining to the florentine taste. — In 1852, they commenced decorating its interior after the plan of Van der Nüll. The church is richly ornamented with sculpture, frescoes, and paintings by Kupelwieser, Führich, Engerth, Blaas, Schönmann etc. The high altar of hewn stone is in the best taste. The ceiling of the vault is blue with gold stars. This church is one of the finest edifices of the kind in Vienna.

The Church of the Lazarists in Schottenfeld, (B. 6.), was built between 1860 and 1862 under the direction of architect F. Schmidt, one of the builders of the new steeple of St. Stephen's Cathedral. This church, built in the gothic style, is remarkable for its simplicity, and the good taste that has been displayed in its construction.

St. Salvator's (Votiv-Church), near the Schotten-ring (D. 3.). This church was founded in commemoration of the narrow escape of Emperor Francis-Joseph, who, while walking one day on the ramparts adjoining his palace, was rescued from the hands of a villain who attempted to stab him. — The construction of this church was begun in 1856, after the plan of architect Ferstel. Its two beautiful and spright spires have a height of 95 M.; the interior of the church is not yet completed.

The Parish Church of the former suburb Weissgärber (Weissgärber-Kirche), Landstrasse, Löwengasse

(G. 4.), built by Fred. Schmidt in 1870 in pure gothic style, is one of the finest churches in Vienna, its interior is very remarkable.

There are besides these a great many more catholic churches and chapels in the suburbs, non of which present remarkable features.

The Jews have two synagogues, one in the Seitentstetengasse (city), the other, a large new synagogue built by Förster in 1858, in the Leopoldstadt (F. 3.). The latter is a splendid building kept in the oriental style and beautifully decorated in its interior. The galleries and pillars are of cast iron. This church is lighted up in the evening by 500 gas-lights.

The Protestant Church in Gumpendorf, built by architect Förster in 1869.

Palaces and other Remarkable Edifices.

The Imperial Palace consists of a pile of buildings built at different epochs, which in their structure present no other remarkable feature save that of being exceedingly plain.

The oldest part of the pile is the side-wing to the east, built about the beginning of the 13th century. In the year 1275 it was destroyed by fire. Ottokar II caused it to be rebuilt, and Ferdinand I had the whole palace enlarged. Leopold I began the long south front in 1660, and towards the end of the 16th century the side-wing to the west was commenced. The north side, closing the oblong square, contains the Reichskanzlei (chancery of the empire). It is considered one of the finest pieces of modern architecture in Germany, and was built by Fischer of Erlach in 1728. The figures that adorn the two gateways, representing four labours of Hercules, are by Mathielly.

The long south front is that part of the palace inhabited by the present Emperor. — Here may be seen the reception rooms and the splendid gala-room built under Emperor Francis I (1805). — The imperial apartments are open to visitors during the absence of his Majesty the Emperor. The most remarkable part of them is the Rittersaal, in which court balls and state ceremonies are held and foreign ambassadors received. Between the palace of Leopold and the Swiss-Court (Schweizerhof) is to be seen the grand staircase called Adlerstiege, which was constructed under Charles VI (1730). The buildings adjoining the palace again form two squares called Swiss-Court and Joseph Square, one of the sides of which latter belongs to the imperial library, one of Fischer's greatest master-pieces. The large room in the library measures 78 M. by 17; — eight columns support its ceiling which is adorned with twelve statues representing the princes of the House of Habsburg, Charles VI, and the bust of Van Swieten in marble. The paintings on the ceiling are by D. Gran. The ball-room in the Redoute (Redoutensaal) and the Winter Riding-School, the finest in Europe, are on the west side of the square, and were constructed by Fischer of Erlach.

The Court Theatre, adjoining the Winter Riding-School was commenced in 1741 and enlarged in 1760 (see the article Theatres).

The Swiss-Court leads to the Cabinet of the Emperor, the private Court Library, the Treasury, the Astronomical Cabinet, and the Court Fountain.

The northern side of the Palace (chancery of the kingdom) contains the Archives of State and the apartments destined to the reception of foreigners of distinction. The magnificent stair-case called Batthyany-Stiege was constructed by Fischer of Erlach (1761). The appellation of „Augustiner-Gang“ has been given to the passage which unites the Swiss-Court to the Augustin Church and to the palace of Archduke Albert, and contains a rich collection of ancient coins and other antiquities as well as the Cabinet of Mineralogy. The „Laternengang“ (Lantern passage) leads under ground from the „Augustinergang“ to the Court garden.

The Palace of the Government of Lower Austria (Statthalterei), Herrengasse 11, built by Sprenger (1847).

The Palace of the States of Lower Austria, Herrengasse 13, was begun in 1838 and finished in 1844 by architect L. Pichl. The frescoes in the large room are by Pozzo, the paintings on glass in the chapel by Geyling from drawings by Schnorr. In the Court-yard belonging to this building broke out the revolution of 1848.

The National Bank, Herrengasse 15, 17, at the corner of the Strauchgasse, facing the Freiung, was built between the years 1856 and 1860, after the plans of Ferstel in the Italian Renaissance style. It is a fine structure in bricks covered over with hewn stone. Here is a passage which communicates between the Freiung and the Herrengasse; the frescoes on the stair-case are by C. Geiger.

The Credit-Bank (Crédit mobilier) on the Hof 6, built in 1858 and 1859 after the plans of Fröhlich.

The Home Ministry, Wipplingerstrasse 11, constructed by command of Emperor Charles VI, by Fischer of Erlach.

The Town-Hall, Wipplingerstrasse 8, consists of a cluster of houses which have successively become the property of the corporation. The most ancient part of the building, dates from the 15th century, and is situated Salvatorgasse, near the chapel. It has since been restored. The large room in which the Municipal-Corporation meet, is adorned with statues by Rammelmeier, with Cariatides, basreliefs, and coat-of-arms by Gasser, the paintings on glass by Geyling. In the Court-yard is to be seen a fountain with a basrelief in metal, by Donner.

The Ministry of Finances, Himmelpfortgasse 8, 10, 12, its construction was commenced in 1703, by Hildebrand and completed by Fischer of Erlach, for the Prince Eugene of Savoy. The stair-case and hall produce a great effect. The whole edifice is a good specimen of the quaint old style.

The Academy of Sciences, Universitätsplatz 2, built in 1754 under the patronage of Maria-Theresia. The frescoes in the large hall (Aula) by Guglielmi. Till 1848 the university had its seat in this building.

The Cur-Salon, Stadtpark, built 1865 after the plan of J. Garben.

The Building of the Horticultural Society in Parkring, built under the direction of A. Weber in 1864, contains a very beautiful room on each side of which are two smaller ones and two hot-houses.

The Academic Gymnasium on the bank of the Wien (river), Christinengasse, was constructed under the direction and after the plans of Frederic Schmidt between the years 1863 and 1866. This building is remarkable for the great simplicity of its style. Its main front on the Christinengasse is the only part which is ornamented. Its chapel is very pretty.

The Academy of Commerce, Akademiestrasse 12 (E. 5.), after the plan of architect F. Fellner, was built between 1860 and 1862. The two statues of Christoph Columb and Adam Smith on the main front are by Cesar. This institution was founded in 1857 and counts now 830 pupils and 43 professors.

The Protestant School, Technikerstrasse, built at the expense of the community by Th. Hansen between 1860 and 1862.

The Building belonging to the Society of Arts (Künstlerhaus) (E. 5.) facing the Academy of Commerce, built after the designs of August Weber, is also of recent construction (1865).

The Imp. Austrian Museum of Art and Industry (k. k. österr. Museum für Kunst und Industrie), Stubenring 5 (F. 4.), a sumptuous palace, built between the years 1868 and 1871 in Italian Renaissance style after the plans of Ferstl. (For the collections it contains — see the article: Collections.)

The Building belonging to the Society of the Friends of Music, Lothringerstrasse (E. 5.), was constructed by Architect Hansen in 1867. This building can boast of a splendid concertroom with accomodation for more than 2000 persons. The number of members belonging to this society is very large. It has a Conservatory of Music conducted by 43 professors, and attended by 490 pupils.

The Court Stables, Hofstallstrasse 1. This building was constructed by Fischer of Erlach in 1725 and renovated in 1845. 400 horses can find accomodation in it. There is besides a very interesting collection of saddles and harnesses as well as of shooting requisites. (To be seen every day of the week; entrance tickets are to be obtained in the „Amalienhof“ of the Imperial Palace.)

The Polytechnic, Wieden, Technikergasse 13, was built in 1816.

The New Opera-House, Opernring (E. 5.), constructed after the plans of van der Nüll and Siccardsburg, one of the finest buildings in Vienna, begun in 1861 and opened in Mai 1869. Both architects died before the building was completed. The effect of the interior is really imposing; the decorations are by Rahl, Schwind, Engerth, Laufberger. The loggia, with frescoes by Schwind and five allegorical figures in bronze by Hähnel, is very remarkable. The Opera is one of the largest in Europe and can accommodate more than 3000 persons; the ventilation is admirable.

The Theresianum, Wieden, Favoritenstrasse 15. Leopold I caused this edifice to be constructed, and it subsequently became the summer residence of all the Austrian Emperors, until Maria-Theresia devoted it to an educational institution for noblemen's sons.

The Mint, Landstrasse, Heumarkt 1, built by Sprenger in 1836. Interior to be seen every Thursday.

The Belvedere Palace, Rennweg 6 (F. 6.), foun-det by Prince Eugene (1693) and terminated in 1724 contains the renowned Collection of paintings (see the article: Picture Galleries).

Imperial Military Riding-School, Ungergasse 61, built by Picchioni in 1850 is divided into three wings; one contains the riding-school, a second, the apartments of the directors, and a third the board of Administration. The monumental group of a rider on a rearing horse is by Meixner.

The Rodolph Hospital, Landstrasse, Rudolphsgasse, built between the years 1860 and 1864, after the plan of J. Horky. Over 1000 patients find accomodation in it.

The Arsenal, outside the Belvedere town-gate (G.8.), is one of the finest buildings of modern times. Its construction was commenced in 1849, and completed in 1855 by the architects van der Nüll, Siccardsburg, Rösner, Förster, and Hansen. It forms an oblong square having its front towards the town. The two long sides measure 690 M. Its appearance calls to mind a fortress consisting of four square pavilions. The central pavilion with the porch is inhabited by the commanding officer. Its sculptures are by Gasser. In the centre is to be seen the church of our „Lady of Victory“. This vast pile of buildings can accomodate 3000 soldiers. — 2000 workmen are daily occupied here.

The Terminus of the Western-Railway near the gate of Mariahilf (A. 6.), was constructed on the plan of Löhr between the years 1854 and 1858.

The sculptures on the main front are by Meixner; the marble statue of the Empress Elizabeth, in the hall, is the work of Gasser.

The Terminus of the Northern-Railway in the Leopoldstadt (G. 2.), in its present state dates from 1865 in which year it was completed. — The architects Stummer, Ehrenhaus, Hoffmann, and Hermann directed the construction of this edifice. Its large hall and waiting-rooms impress the visitor with admiration for the sumptuousness of their decoration.

The Medico-Surgical Academy, Währingergasse 15, built 1785 by express command of Emperor Joseph II.

The Great Hospital, Alserstrasse 4, founded by Emperor Joseph II., in 1783. This vast building contains over 100 large rooms for patients, 60 private rooms, etc.

The Lunatic Asylum, Alsergrund, Lazarethgasse 14, built on the plan of Nadherny, was completed in 1851. It can receive 500 lunatics.

Private Palaces.

The Palace of Archduke William, constructed in 1856 and 1866, under the direction of Hansen, in the best Italian Renaissance style, is remarkable for the sumptuousness of its marble front. This palace is deemed one of the best specimens of modern architecture.

The Palace of Archduke Louis-Victor, Schwarzenbergplatz, built on the plan of Ferstel in the Italian

Renaissance style of the 16th century faces the square, and commands a view of the Kolowratring.

The Palace of Archduke Albert (Augustiner-Bastei) was constructed by architect Montoyer (1801 till 1804). This Palace is built upon a terrace, the last remnants of the ancient ramparts, and communicates, by a covered passage, with the new building (constructed in 1863 on the plan of Hefst), which faces the Hofburg-gardens, and is inhabited by functionaries of the Archduke.

The Palace of Prince Montenuovo, Strauchgasse, built in 1851—1852. The court-yard is embellished by a beautiful equestrian statue, representing St. George in the act of killing the dragon, by Fernkorn.

The Palace of the Duke of Württemberg, Kärntnerring, built on the plan of Zanetti (of Munich) between the years 1863 and 1864, was purchased in 1872 by Chevalier Horace de Landau and adapted to the now existing „Hôtel Imperial“, the most splendid of Vienna (see: Hôtels).

The Palace of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, Seilerstätte 1, was constructed between 1843—1847 after the plans of Schleps, Korompay, etc.

The Palace of Prince Liechtenstein, Schenkenstrasse 9, Hildebrand's built (1694), one of the most splendid palaces of Vienna. This edifice has been very effectually renovated in 1847 by Devignes. The expense of its repairs amounted to some millions of florins.

The Palace of Marquis Pallavicini, Josephsplatz 5, was built (1784) for Count M. Fries, by Hohenberg. The Cariatides are by Zauner.

The Palace of Prince Schwarzenberg, Rennweg, begun on the plan of Fischer of Erlach in 1706, and terminated in 1725. The internal decorations are very sumptuous. Behind the palace is a large garden open to the public.

The Palace of Prince Auersperg, built in 1724, by Fischer of Erlach, Josephstadt, Auerspergstrasse. The temple of Flora (a pavilion) is considered as a masterpiece of that age.

The Palace of Prince Liechtenstein, Alsergrund, Liechtensteinstrasse 36, constructed on the plan of Martinelli between the years 1701—1712. A wonderful staircase of red marble, 3.80 M. large, is leading to the reception hall on the first floor with 18 marble columns and frescoes by Pozzo; it contains the celebrated gallery of paintings (see this Article).

The Palace of Mr. Drasche (Heinrichshof), Opernring, opposite the Opera. Six ordinary sized houses might have been built on the space allotted to this one large edifice, the work of architect Hansen. The frescoes between the windows of the fourth floor are by Rahl. This sumptuous building was constructed between the years 1861 and 1863.

The Warehouse of Philipp Haas and Sons, Stock-im-Eisenplatz 6, built in 1867 by van der Nüll and Siccardsburg. The whole of the splendid building is occupied by the stores of this far-famed Carpet-Manufacturers.

To the preceding list we will add the names of a few dwelling-houses remarkable for their size, and the great number of lodgers they contain.

In the Bürgerspital, of very ancient built, Kärntnerstrasse, about 1000 persons find accomodation.

The Freihaus, property of Prince Starhemberg, Wieden, has 22 courts and over 200 dwellings inhabited by about 1200 persons.

There remain still to be mentioned some important buildings actually in construction, which, when completed will rank among the most splendid monuments of architecture of the 19th century.

First of all — the new Town-Hall near the Franzensring (D. 4.) in the gothic style after the plans of Frederic Schmidt, will certainly be the grandest building of Vienna; it covers more than 18.000 □ M. and the anticipated time required for its construction is from 8 to 9 years, at an expence of 10 Millions of florins. — On both sides of the Town-Hall, divided by a Park with grand fountains, will stand, on the right, the Houses of Parliament in greek style after the plans of Hansen — to the left, the new University in Italian Renaissance after the plans of Ferstl. The whole of the lecture-halls of the latter (more than 40) will have to accomodate over 6000 students at a time; the Library united with the University will be similar in construction to that of St. Genéviève in Paris; a hall with 3 naves, 24 M. high, supported by 20 columns with accomodation for more than 400 students is destined to receive about 350.000 volumes.

On the Burgring two Museums are in construction after the plans of Hasenauer and Semper, one of which, near the Babenbergerstrasse (D. 5.) is predestined for the reception of the Picture Gallery actually in the Belvedere, the historical collections etc., the other, near the Bellariagasse is destined for the collections of natural history.

Last, but not least, we can mention the New Exchange on the Schottenring (F. 3.), after the plans of Hansen in Renaissance, a gigantic building, which occupies a space of nearly 9000 □ M.

Public Monuments.

The number of historical monuments which Vienna has to show, is rather limited.

The Equestrian Statue of Emperor Joseph II (Joseph Square) was caused to be erected by Emperor

Francis I (1807) in remembrance of his uncle. It is a master-piece of statuary Zauner.

The Monument of Emperor Francis I, in the imperial Palace Court, is a fine group in cast iron by Marchesi. In its centre is to be seen the Emperor's statue, representing him erect and with stretched arm. This statue is surrounded by four allegorical figures, i. e. Faith, Justice, Peace, and Power. The inscription „Amorem populis meis“ is quoted from the will of that Emperor. This monument is however by no means considered as one of Marchesi's master-pieces.

The Equestrian Statue of Archduke Charles, in the square between the imperial Palace and the Burgthor (D. 4.), is remarkable for the boldness of its conception and the nicety with which the most minutious details are executed. It was inaugurated in 1860.

Facing this monument (D. 5.) is to be seen the Equestrian Statue of Prince Eugene of Savoy in cast iron (1865), both monuments are the work of Fernkorn. The Pedestal is by van der Nüll. On the escutcheons are to be read the following inscriptions: „Prince Eugene, the Noble Knight“; „To the Victor of Many a Battle“; „To the Wise Adviser of three Monarchs“.

The Monument of Schubert, the celebrated composer († 1828) in the Town-Park (F. 5.) by Ch. Kundmann, erected in 1872.

The Column of the Trinity, Graben, completed in 1693. This monument was erected by Emperor Leopold I in 1679, when the plague ceased to rage in Austria. It measures 21 M. in height and is the work of Fischer of Erlach.

The Equestrian Statue of Prince Charles Schwarzenberg, on the Square bearing the same name, between the Ringstrasse and Schwarzenberg-Bridge, was unveiled in 1868 in commemoration of the battle of Leipzig, and is the work of Hähnel of Dresden.

The Pillar to the Holy Virgin, am Hof (E. 4.), was erected by command of Emperor Leopold I, in honour of the Virgin Mary; a similar one is to be seen on the Hohenmarkt, also an ex-voto of that Emperor.

The Ressel Monument, erected in honour of the first who conceived the idea of propelling vessels by means of the archemidian Screw. This bronze statue is the work of Fernkorn (1863) and may be seen in the garden before the Polytechnic Institution.

Some of the Public Fountains are likewise ornamented with statues and monumental groups, the principal of which are: the groups by Raphael Donner, Neuer Markt; — the allegorical figures around this fountain, represent the four rivers in the Archduchy of Austria, viz. the Traun, the Enns, the Ips, and the March.

Vienna possesses in the marble group of Theseus and the Centaur, (D. 4.), executed by Canova by express command of Emperor Francis I, a masterpiece of modern times. This beautiful group may be seen in the Volksgarten in the Temple of Theseus.

It is 24 M. long and 14 M. wide, and is executed by Nobili exactly in the same proportions as that in Athens.

The fountain on the Freiung (D. E. 4.), erected at the expense of the town by scultor Schwanthaler of Munich. The main statue represents Austria surrounded by four allegorical figures, viz. the Danube, the Vistula, the Elbe, and the Po.

The group of Perseus on the fountain of the Town Hall, is by Donner, while the metal figures adorning the fountains in Franciscan's Square, on the Graben in Hof Square, in the principal street of the Alser suburb, and those before the Josephinum (C. D. 3.), are by Fischer.

The Stock-im-Eisen is one of the greatest curiosities which Vienna possesses. It consists of the stump.

of an old tree, so thoroughly studded with nails that nothing of the wood remains to be seen. This trunk is the last remnant of the forest of Vienna, which in former times is said to have covered the whole area which the town now occupies. It was customary for all young artisans, studying their trade, to travel through the country, staying a few days at some of the principal cities. Not a single journey-man locksmith passed through Vienna without hammering a nail into the trunk of this tree; this fact may be relied upon as being historical, and hence the name of the street Stock-im-Eisen (stick-in-iron, or more properly, iron-clad stump), which has been retained.

Vienna will be adorned in a short time by three other Monuments viz. of Schiller, Grillparzer, and Tegetthoff, for the first, the model by Schilling is completed and it will be the finest monument existing of the immortal poet; it is to be erected on the Schillerplatz (D. E. 5.), near the Opernring before the new building of the Academy of Fine Arts still in construction.

Public and Private Gardens.

The Imp. Garden (Burggarten) east of the Imperial Palace, possesses two large hot-houses 128 M. in length by 15 in height and a winter garden, the roof of which rests on Corinthian columns. Here is to be seen the equestrian statue of Francis I, This garden, which abounds in a great variety of camelias, roses, and other beautiful and rare flowers, is not open to the Viennese public; strangers obtain admission in the morning.

The People's Garden (Volksgarten), facing the imp. Garden, dates from 1824. In the centre of the garden is a temple called, the temple of Theseus, an imitation of that at Athens which contains a beautiful group in white marble, representing Theseus subduing the Minotaur. To the left of the entry is a café, at which good concerts may be heard every day during the fine season.

The Town Park (Stadtpark), is the most recent and most fashionable walk in Vienna. It is situated on the right and left bank of the „Wien“, between the Kolowratring and the Stubenring, and occupies an area of 143.800 □ Metres. At the time of the demolition of the ramparts (1857), it was ordered by express command of the Emperor that a part of the adjacent glacis should be transformed into a park. Agreeably to the imperial order, the new park was laid out in 1862, under the direction of Siebek, and after the plans of painter Selleny. That portion of the park, situated on the right bank of the „Wien“, is a place of resort for children; hence its name Kinderpark. On the left bank of the Wien is a nice pavilion made of cast iron that was exhibited at the London International Exhibition. The town Corporation bought it for 3000 florins, and adorned the park with it. Another ornament worth seeing is a statue representing the Danubian Maid by Gasser; — finally the monument of Schubert near the Ringstrasse, erected in 1872. The Kursalon, at one of the extremities of the Park, is a nice building after the plan of architect Garben.

The Public Garden, on this side of the arm of the Danube and facing the Leopoldstadt.

The Augarten, to the north of the town and on an islet, was opened to the public by Joseph II. in 1757. On its principal gate may yet the following inscription be read: „Allen Menschen gewidmeter Belustigungsort von ihrem Schätzer“ (Place of recreation dedicated to all men by their friend). This garden though barely frequented, commands a very nice view and has beautiful shady walks. In one part of it are stored up the collections brought over by the frigate „Novara“ on her return from her long voyage round the world, (1857—1859), but not yet to be seen.

The Belvedere Garden, Rennweg, founded by Eugene of Savoy, does not, save its beautiful gallery, present any very remarkable feature. It is nicely laid out, and from the terrace at the rear back of the garden a general view of Vienna and its environs can be obtained.

The Imp. Garden in the Prater, a park in the English style with a villa in it, is not accessible to any one but the imperial family.

The Gardens of the Horticultural Society, Parkring, surrounding the building belonging to the society, and Landstrasse, Rudolphsgasse 13, founded with a view of forwarding the cultivation of plants, fruits, and vegetables, holds annual exhibitions.

The Garden of the Agricultural Society, Landstrasse, Rudolphsgasse 13, near to the preceding; these two gardens encircle the Rudolph Hospital.

The Two Gardens of Prince Liechtenstein, Landstrasse, Rasumoffskygasse and Liechtensteinstrasse 38.

The Garden of Prince Schwarzenberg, Rennweg 2, is one of the largest and finest gardens in Vienna; it is adorned with the sweetest beds of flowers and planted with beautiful trees in the mixed English and French styles. Always open to the public.

The Garden of the Duke of Modena, Landstrasse, Beatrixgasse 20.

The Garden of the Princely Family Dietrichstein, Währingerstrasse 30.

The Prater; the usual way to the Prater is through the Praterstrasse (see page 4). On reaching the end of this beautiful street, the whole Prater, laid out in 1537 and comprising the Punch and Judy Prater (Wurstl-Prater), lies before one. It consists of the remains of a large forest, intersected by three large alleys retaining a sufficient number of majestic trees to give evident proof of its old age. The chief Alley (Hauptallee), which is by far the longest and finest, and the resort of fashionable people, is that to the right of the Praterstern, an open place at the bottom of the Praterstrasse. It is divided into three sections; the middle broad causeway is for carriages, the right for equestrians, and the left for pedestrians. — These three sections terminate in a circular platform, called the Rondeau. Persons who wish to prolong their walk or drive can proceed nearly as far again to a handsome summer building, called the Lusthaus. The latter, as well as the left side of the main Alley, is provided with cafés, where refreshments may be had, and where on a summer evening many thousands of persons are assembled, taking their supper and listening to the music.

The Exhibition of 1873 has entirely changed the character of the Prater and besides the Exhibition itself it offers now such a plenty of amusements, especially between the chief-alley and the next to the left (Weltausstellungsstrasse) that it would be impossible to give a list of them.

Historical Collections.

The Imp. Cabinet of Antiquities, Coins and Medals (k. k. Münz- und Antiken-Cabinet) in the Imp. Palace, entrance from Joseph square, east of the library, the staircase in the right-hand corner. Admission every Monday and Thursday from 10 till 2 o' clock.

This remarkable collection consists of a vast number of bronzes, Etruscan vases, terracottas, mosaics, ancient lamps, antique household utensils, and a great variety of intaglios. — No other Museum in Europe can boast of a similar collection of Cameos, among others, the Apotheosis of emperor Augustus, an onix 23 Centm. in diameter, with 20 beautiful figures, is a Cameo, which, although in size is surpassed by one in Paris, as to the workmanship is the finest roman specimen of the Augustinian age and has non to equal it in the world; — a head of Tiberius, and another of Mercurius are also very fine.

The same Cabinet (V) contains a Cup of oriental agat, 740 Mm. in diameter; it is an unicum as no other jewel of this size is known. — The collection of Coins and Medals contains over 130.000 specimens of ancient Greek and Roman Coins, dollars, florins, and false coins of the middle ages and modern times, ducats, and groschens; bronze medals, and oriental coins. From this rich collection was selected the most interesting portion and is exhibited in the first room at the right from the entrance.

The Imp. Cabinet of Egyptian Antiquities, in the lower building of the Belvedere. Contains 4 rooms filled with specimens of Egyptian antiquities that have found no room in the Cabinet of the Imp. Palace. These consist chiefly of vases, papyrus rolls, mummies, sarcophagus, statues, bronze and terra-cotta (baked clay) curiosities. Very remarkable is a large sarcophagus with its lid of black granit, covered inside and outside with reliefs and hieroglyphs of an admirable workmanship; one of the finest sarcophagus of all which are known.

The Collection of antique Sculptures, Inscriptions and Mosaics in the same building, belonging likewise to the Imp. Cabinet of antiquities, is a collection of no great importance, but it contains two objects of the best period of grecian art, which by themselves fully indemnify the visitor, viz, a bronze statue of Hermes found in Carinthia and a sarcophagus, called the Sarcophagus of the Fugger family, with basreliefs of the Battle of the Amazones, of an extraordinary beauty.

The Collection of Ambras (Ambraser-Sammlung), in the lower building of the Belvedere, Rennweg 6. Its name its derived from the Castle of Ambras in Tyrol, where it was founded by the Archduke Ferdinand (second son of the Emperor Ferdinand I), in the second half of the 16th century, it was from thence, transferred to Vienna in 1806, when, subsequently to the peace of Presburg, Tyrol was given up to Bavaria. It is open to the public every tuesday and friday from 9 to 12, a. m. and from 3 to 6 p. m. and sunday from 9 to 1 o'clock. During the winter it remains closed. — This collection contains 143 authentic coat of mails, once the property of Princes and other illustrious personages of the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries; the most interesting collection of this kind in Europe and of undoubtable authority; — great number of portraits representing illustrious men of the middle ages; — a nice selection of cut stones and many other rarities which occupy 7 saloons and cabinets.

This collection contains now the celebrated mass-robes worn at the foundation of the order of the golden fleece by order of Philipp the good of Burgundy which formerly were to be found in the Imp. Treasury — they are covered with 280 wonderful figures in embroidery after the designs of Van Eyck or one of his foremost scholars.

The Imperial Treasury (k. k. Schatzkammer). Admission is given on tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 10 to 1 o'clock. Tickets are to be obtained the day before presenting a card de visite from 10—12 at the passage between the Schweizerhof and the Josephsplatz. This collection, which occupies part of the Schweizerhof (Imperial Palace), contains a precious selection of vases and basins of gold, silver rocky cristal and jewels, partly of the most wonderful workmanship; — a great many specimens of ancient watches, surpassed perhaps by no other collection of this kind; — many historical and very valuable objects, the principal of which are: the sacred relics used at the coronation of the German emperors for many centuries, consisting of a crown adorned with uncut stones and bearing the inscription: Chuonradus Dei gratia Romanorum Imperator Augustus, together with an orb, a sceptre, a sword, a tunic, a pair of gloves, and shoes. — To the Relics displayed on the occasion of an Emperors being crowned, belong besides the spear with which Jesus-Christ was transfixed by a soldier, nails from the holy Cross, one of John the Baptist's teeth, a fragment of St. John the Evangelist's gown, etc.

The imperial crown, the orb and sceptre of Austria, dating from Rudolph II and worn by the German Emperors when, after their proclamation, they solemnly entered the town of Frankfort (this crown studded with unpolished precious stones weighs 1189 grains; the orb, 484 ducats and the sceptre, 194 ducats); — the crowns worn by their Majesties the Emperor Ferdinand I and his Empress during the ceremony of their coronation at Prague (1837); the crown of the emperor, an imitation of that of Rudolph II, contains 20 large diamands, 504 small ones, 122 large round pearls, 745 small ones, etc.; finally the historical diamond called the „Florentine“, lost by Charles the Bold at the battle of Murten and picked up by a soldier who sold it for 1 florin; it weighs 133 carats (532 grains) and is worth about 1,000.000 florins. The collection of vases and basins contains the celebrated Salt-cellar made by Benvenuto Cellini of exquisite workmanship. Among the historical curiosities are to be mentioned: The crown, sceptre and robes worn by Napoleon at the time he was crowned king at Milan; — the cradle of the king of Rome; — the hunter's horn of Landgrave Albert of Alsatia and Habsburg (1190); — the sabre of Tamerlan; the swords of John Huniadi, Maximilian I and Charles V; the Horoscop of the Duke of Friedland (Wallenstein); the chains and necklaces of the different Austrian orders of distinction.

The Imperial Archives (k. k. Hof- und Staats-Archiv) in the Imp. Palace, instituted in 1749. A very valuable collection which, as to the relations of the Austrian Empire with Spain, the Netherlands and Italy is one of the most important Archives in Europe.

The Imperial Arsenal, outside of the Belvedere gate, rich in specimens of historical worth, among which are remarkable:

The armour of Attila, king of the Huns; — the hat of Geoffrey of Bouillon given to this warrior by the Pope when the former placed himself at the head of the crusaders on their pilgrimage to the Holy Land; — the attire of Frederic the Martial, last of the Babenbergs' race; — the armour of Louis II, king of Hungary, slain at the battle of Mohacz; the armour of Charles V; — the armours of the three Ferdinands; — that of Rudiger of Starhemberg, defensor of Vienna during the siege of the Turks (1683); — The flag of the Grand-Vizier and leader of the Turks during the said siege; — the armour worn by king Sobieski on the day of the battle which freed Vienna from its besiegers; — the leather collar worn by Prince Eugene with a bunsh of his hair; — the coat of mail of General Montécucculi; — the Polish flag of General Kozciuszko, and a good many more interesting reminiscence of old times. — The Arsenal may be visited daily.

The Civil Arsenal (das bürgerliche Zeughaus), Hof 10; admission every Monday and Thursday, from 9 to 12. The arsenal was founded in the 16th century, but the building which it now occupies dates from 1631. The rich collection of armours, exhibited in a hall is most splendid and well deserves to be seen; — the most remarkable objects are: 100 complete sets of armour, among which that of St. Hilary and of Philip, Count Palatine of the Rhine; — the flag of the 1st bataillon of the 5th regiment of French infantry wrested from Caldiero's hands by Archduke Charles (1805); — that of the Viennese Volunteers rescued by Richter at the capture of Montoua (1797); — the standard of the Great-Master of the knights of Malta, Count John of Herberstein; — the Turkish banner which Charles of Lorraine carried off from Buda (Hungary) and which was before deposited in the Stephen's Church; — the ensigns of Field-Marshal Loudon with a tuft of his hair; — the crescent which ornamented the spire of St. Stephen's Church; — a standard of the town of Vienna (1529); — one of Charles V.; — one of Ottocar of Bohemia; — a mountain staff used by Andreas Hofer; the banner with which the Viennese Citizens effected a sally during the siege of Vienna (1683). —

The sheet and skull of Kara Mustapha; — which are shown here, lately have been acknowledged as false.

The Collection of Saddles (k. k. Sattelkammer) and the Collection of Hunting Requisites (k. k. Jagdkammer), without the Burgthor, Hofstallstrasse 1, contain a great many articles which deserve to be seen, such as caparisons, saddles, harness, etc., that have figured at the crowning ceremonies of princes, guns of great value, the arquebuse of Charles VI, the hunting suit worn by Joseph II and torn by a wilful stag, which in self-defence attacked and wounded the Emperor, and many other historical curiosities. At the same time may be seen the Court Stables. — see page 34.

Fine Arts.

The Imperial Academy of Fine Arts, Annagasse 3 (E. 5.), founded by Joseph I in 1705, later developed and forwarded by Maria-Theresia and Joseph II., has been completely reorganised between the years 1850 1865 and 1872. Elementary instruction has been replaced by the real object of the Academy, namely, that of becoming a high school of Art, or one instituted to encourage and promote its progress. — The Academy is divided into two departments:

- I. A general school for painting and sculpture, and
- II. a special school for historical painting sculpture, engraving, landscape, plastic, and architecture.

This Academy is richly endowed and possessed of all the necessary requirements to form good scholars. It is placed under the tutorship of a president, and has an Academical Council consisting of its professors and eight independent artists appointed by the Council. — The number of its ordinary professors is 17, to which a few assistants may be added.

The Imp. Museum of Art and Industrie (k. k. österreichisches Museum für Kunst und Industrie), Stubenring (F. 4.), founded in 1863. The immediate impulse to the erection of this Museum was caused by the General-Exhibition in London (1862) and the South-Kensington-Museum. Its object is to enhance good taste and progress in the different branches of trade and industry by benefiting them with the application of scientific and artistical knowledge. — To this effect the Museum contains a great variety of choice specimens in the multifarious lines of trade and industry which they serve to elucidate, thereby calling the attention of the mechanic and artisan to the importance of art in its application to the numerous inventions that are daily made. — The greater number of articles forming this collection are, however, only borrowed, the Emperor having placed the court collections, those of the University, Polytechnic, Arsenal, and other similar institutions, at the disposal of the Director. — Besides these sources, the Museum is enabled to increase its collections by its own means as well as either by legacies or donations from the rich, etc. Occasional exhibitions are held here which are well worth seeing.

The Museum is the most visited by the Viennese in preference to all other collections. Open daily from 9 to 4, Mondays excepted; on Tuesdays and Wednesdays the price of admission is 30 Kreuzers.

Picture Galleries.

Besides a collection of engravings and a library, the Academy of Fine-Arts (Annagasse 3), possesses a fine gallery of paintings and a very interesting collection of plaster figures, chiefly copied from classic Greek and Roman originals (Among others from the „Elgin marbles“) and of the middle ages.

The collection of paintings called Lamberg'sche Gallerie, was bequeathed to the Academy by the late Count Anton Lamberg. — It consists of 800 excellent paintings, 200 of which belong to the classical Flemish school; others again are by old German masters and Paul Potter, Claude Lorraine, Hemling, Cranach, Rubens, Jordans, Terburg, Teniers, Ruisdael, Velasquez, Murillo (Spanish school), Paul Veronese, and Tintoretto, are to be seen here. — Open daily from 10 to 1 o'clock.

The present building is very unfavourable and insufficient for the collections — part of which is not to be seen for want of space to expose it; but a new building is in course of construction at the Schillerplatz (D. E. 5.).

The Imp. Gallery, at the Belvedere, Rennweg (F. 7.), is open from the 24th April to the 30th Sept. every day (Mondays excepted) from 10 to 4. On Sundays and in Winter it is open only from 10 to 2. This collection, was originally founded, though neither on its present scale nor on its present situation, by Mathias II. It was subsequently enriched by a great number of pictures formerly in the possession of Charles II. of England, by the Archduke Leopold Wilhelm, Governor of the Netherlands (1646—1656) and under Charles VI. and Joseph II., it received again large additions. It is impossible to give an idea of the richness of the above collection within the limits of the present work; suffice it to say, that it contains nearly 1800 paintings large and small, and that one of its great peculiarities and advantages is, its possessing admirable specimens from the various periods of all the principal schools, as Flemish, Dutch, Italian, and old and modern German, so as to present to the artist or amateur a complete survey of the progress of the art, and form what may be termed a very rich and select collection. The names of Giorgione, Titian, Paul Veronese, Tintoretto, Raphael, Perugino, Caravaggio, Salvator Rosa, Da Vinci, Del Sarto, Carlo Dolce, Michel Angelo, Guido Reni, Correggio, Carracci, Vandyk, Rubens, Teniers, Rembrandt, Paul Potter, Ruysdael, Wouwermans, Van Eyck, Albrecht Dürer, will be sufficient to excite the curiosity of the visitor endowed with taste for exhibitions of this kind. A complete Catalogue in german and french may be procured at the Gallery.

The Gallery of Prince Liechtenstein, Liechtensteinstrasse 36 (D. 2.), open to the public daily, contains 1430 paintings distributed in 25 large rooms of his Palace (see page 43). Besides these, there are about 400 marble and bronze statues. The most remarkable paintings of this collection are: Pictures by the most celebrated masters of the Italian and Flemish schools; several by Leonardo da Vinci; the best Holy family by Del Sarto; the Virgin and Child by Perugino; — a portrait of Wallenstein, by Vandyk. Also pictures by Raphael, Correggio, Guido Reni, Carlo Dolce, Titian, and Rubens.

The Gallery of Count Czernin, Josefstadt, Rathausstrasse 9, consisting of 400 select specimens of the French, Spanish, Italian, and Flemish schools; a splendid Paul Potter. This collection was founded by Count Rodolph Czernin, (1845) the greater part of whose life was occupied in collecting the pictures. Visitors obtain admittance every Monday and Thursday from 10 to 2 o' clock.

The Gallery of Count Schönborn-Buchheim, Renngasse 4, not large, but very select. — Open every day, apply to the steward.

The Gallery of Count Harrach, Freiung 3, open to visitors every Wednesday and Saturday. Above 300 paintings, among which are some by Perugino, Leonardo da Vinci, Velazquez, Schalcken, Jos. Vernet etc.

Prints, Engravings and original Drawings.

Attached to the Imperial Library is a fine collection of engravings, commenced by Prince Eugen of Savoy in the year 1730; not less splendid in itself than famous for the solicitous care that attended the selection of the specimens. — This collection is divided into five sections, viz: 1) a large collection consisting of 600 engravings, large in-folio, and 18 port-folios containing essays of a more than ordinary size; 2) a collection of portraits in 290 bandboxes (in-folio); 3) 875 volumes of works illustrated with engravings; 4) a collection of miniatures and drawings 140 vols; 5) a collection representing above 1000 solemn processional trains in 40 volumes in-folio, besides 64 port-folios.

The number of engravings of the two first collections amounts to 300.000. The engravings are chronologically arranged according to the different schools, their printers and engravers. This collection may justly be termed one of the most extensive and precious in Europe.

It would be impossible to give here a list of the capital specimens, this rich collection contains, we mention only some of the greatest rarities it includes. Among the Niellos, of which it possesses 72, some very rare by Maso Finiguerra and Peregrino da Cesena; the italian school is represented by Sandro Botticelli; Pallajuolo; Andrea Mantegna; Martino da Udine; Marc Antonio Raimondi, mostly after Raphael etc. Of the german school there is the so called Master of 1464 — and that of 1480; — Franz von Bocholt; — Martin Schongauer; — Albrecht Dürer etc.; of the flemish school: Lucas van Leyden a. o. Of almost all these artists the collection includes the most rare specimens, very remarkable for their preservation. — There are besides to mention the Original etchings by Elzheimer, Roos, van Dyk, Rembrandt, A. Ostade, Potter, Ruysdael and others.

The private library of the Emperor (see p. 74) is enriched with a collection of 102.000 engravings, of which 89.000 are portraits, and 887 portfolios containing 22.065 portraits collected by Lavater at the time that he was engaged in his physiognomical researches.

The Collection of Prints of the Archduke Albert, annexed to the library of this Prince, was commenced by the Duke Albert of Saxony-Teschen, son-in-law of the Empress Maria-Theresa. After the demise of the former the art collections became the property of the Archduke Charles, father of their actual proprietor. This collection consists of above 200.000 specimens and of original drawings by the masters of the principal schools, of 16.000 specimens. — The latter is the most complete collection of its kind extant. Amongst the drawings are to be seen: 144 by Raphael of the best time of the artist; indeed no other Cabinet in Europe has such a remarkable collection; — the same is to be said of the 164 drawings by Dürer; and as to this artist, the collection in the „Albertina“ is more important than all the public and private collections in the world put together. — There are besides 36 studies (études) by Michel-Angelo, 150 by Rubens, above 100 by Rembrandt etc. A selection of the most important specimens of the prints and drawings is exhibited in the rooms containing the „Albertina“. — The collection of military plans (battles, sieges, military operations and evolutions) is very remarkable.

Vienna owns two Societies whose object is the encouragement of the Fine Arts (Kunst-Vereine); one of these, established in 1830, holds exhibitions and is now connected with the Society of Artists (Künstlerhaus); the other (österreichischer Kunstverein), has a permanent exhibition of paintings, Tuchlauben 8, purchases pictures and occasionally raffles them. The shareholders have to pay 10 flor. a year. The exhibition is daily open to strangers on paying the moderate fee of 60 kreuzers. Its paintings are monthly removed and replaced by fresh ones.

Printsellers: Artaria & Co., Kohlmarkt 9 (large stock of Geographical Maps). — Paterno, Neuer Markt. — Kaeser, Kärntnerring. — Neumann, Kohlmarkt. — Posonyi, Kärntnerring. — Miethke & Wawra, Plankengasse.

Scientific Institutions and Societies.

The Imperial Academy of Sciences (Kaiserliche Akademie der Wissenschaften), was founded by Emperor Ferdinand I in 1847 and endowed with an annual income of 42,000 florins. It has its seat Universitätsplatz 2 and is divided into two departments: 1) Natural and Mathematical sciences; 2) Philosophical and Historical sciences. Each class has 30 ordinary members, 30 corresponding members for the empire and 30 for abroad. The number of honorary members must not exceed 24. The academical functionaries are: a president: a vice-president, a general-secretary, and an under-secretary.

Public and Private Libraries.

The Imp. roy. Court Library (entrance from the Josephsplatz), was founded by Maximilian I and thrown open to scientific men by Maximilian II. — Charles VI, this great monarch, caused the building in which it now is, to be built and designed it for the purposes of a public institution. Its first librarian, was Conrad Celtes. He was succeeded in this appointment by John Cuspinian, Wolfgang Lazius and Hugo Blotius, the latter of whom was the first who had the title of Imperial librarian conferred upon him. He was in his turn succeeded by Sebastian Tengnagel, Peter Lambecius, Gentilotti, Garelli, the two Swieten, Denis, John Müller etc. The most remarkable acquisitions of which the court library can boast, are: the volumes collected by C. Celtes, John Faber, Bishop of Vienna, John Sambuk, Sebastian Tengenagel, Count Albert Fugger; Tycho Brahe, Marquis Cabrega, Kepler and Pater Gassendi; but it may principally boast of the collections received from Ambras, of those from the Archbishop of Valencia, the latter being lavis in masterpieces of the ancient Spanish literature, and the collection obtained from Prince Eugene. To these must be added about 15.000 vol. of the most important works on science, best editions, 290 volumes in-folio, and 215 maps containing the most precious collection of engravings. The number of printed works therein contained is computed at 300.000 vols; its manuscripts would fill 20.000 volumes, and its incunables (works that appeared during the infancy of printing, say before 1500) 10.000. — This library possesses 985 Greek manuscripts, 2700 Roman manuscripts on parchment, amongst others the fifth Decade from Titus Livius brought from Scotland by St. Suitbert; 11.157 Manuscripts on paper; 85 Hebrew manuscripts; 1000 Oriental manuscripts (the richest collection of the kind extant, from Baron Hammer); 60 Chinese and Indian Manuscripts. Its collection of prints, the gift of Prince Eugene of Savoy, is computed at above 300.000. It has also a collection of music and one of autographs.

The Private Library of the Emperor (at the Imp. Palace). This is one of the best collections of books extant; it consists of about 75.000 volumes and 1800 incunables. It is extremely rich in historical and scientific works, on literature and the fine Arts. Amongst other manuscripts may be seen a unique copy of the ethimystical Persian Poem „Rehabname“ or the book of Citherius, and amongst other rare books should be mentioned 35 Chinese works, one of which in 14 volumes, represents the customs, mode of life, costumes, and different trades of the Chinese.

The University Library, Postgasse 9, was founded by Maria - Teresa and contains above 210.000 vols. This collection is rich in works on history, theology natural history, and the fine arts. To these must be added a nice collection of valuable prints and geographical maps.

The Library at the Military Archives. Hof 1, accessible to military men and functionaries, as well as to any person being provided with a permission from the staff. It contains 40.000 vols and a great variety of geographical maps, plans, manuscripts etc.

The Library of the Theresianum, Wieden, Favoritenstrasse 15, contains 30.000 volumes classed according to the various sciences of which they treat; 128 manuscripts, 293 incunables, and a still greater number printed in the first half of the sixteenth century. Its works on history and natural history are the most numerous.

The Library of the Imp. Roy. Academy for the Oriental languages, Jakobergasse 3, contains about 1000 vols of Oriental works of which 150 from Scutari and 2000 volumes in different languages. The collection of manuscripts is very considerable; it contains 500 original manuscripts, and above 20.000 documents, divani and letters on various topics in the Turkish, Arabic, Persian and modern Greek languages, amongst which some very rare diplomas, autographs from Sultans, and other curious specimens of Oriental hand-writing.

The Library of the Polytechnic, Techniker-gasse 13, founded in 1815, contains about 40.000 vols mostly on technical science.

The Library of the Academy of the Fine Arts, Annagasse 3, contains a nice collection of works on the fine arts, many beautiful drawings and engravings.

The Library of the Observatory, Universitätsplatz 2.

The Library of the Zoological Cabinet, at the Imperial Palace, Josephsplatz.

The Library of the Botanical Museum, in the Botanical Garden, Rennweg.

The Library of the Museum for Mineralogy, very complete, Josephsplatz.

The Library of the Imp. Roy. Museum of Antiquities, at the Imp. Palace, Josephsplatz.

The Library of the Academy of Sciences, Universitätsplatz 2.

The Library of the Imp. Roy. Geological Institution, Landstrasse, Rasumoffskygasse 3.

The Library of the Veterinary Institution, Landstrasse, linke Bahngasse 7, above 5000 volumes on veterinary science, nearly all that has been published on the subject.

The Library of the Society of All Trades of Lower Austria, Eschenbachgasse, above 16.000 vols and 300 Maps etc.

The Library of the Association of the Friends of Music, above 20.000 works of music.

The principal collections of books belonging to convents are: that of the Scotch Benedictines, 20.000 vols (Freiung 6); that of the Servites, 22.000 vols (Servitengasse 7); that of the Piarists (Piaristengasse 43), 17.000 volumes; that of the Dominicans (Postgasse 2), 10.000 vols; — of the Augustines, 15.000 vols, chiefly on theology.

Cabinets of Natural History.

The Imp. Roy. Cabinet of Natural History, consists of three departments:

I. The Museum of Zoology (Josephsplatz), founded in 1795. This is a very complete collection and comprises:

800	species of mammiferous animals (2000 specimens).
5000	” birds (above 20.000 specimens).
900	” Reptiles and Amphibious animals (4000 specimens).
7000	” Fishes (20.000 specimens).
8000	” Molusca (80.000 specimens).
600	” Crustacea.
60000	” Insects (300.000 specimens).
500	” Star Fishes and Zoophytes.
1000	” Intestinal Worms.

This precious collection, which suffered much from the siege of Vienna in 1848, fills 24 halls and rooms. It possesses besides a very valuable library. Admission every day (sundays excepted) from 9 to 2.

II. The Museum of Botany, in the Botanic Garden of the University, Rennweg, comprises about 80.000 specimens of plants, chiefly obtained from the collections of some of the most celebrated scientific men. It likewise possesses a library.

III. The Museum of Mineralogy, at the Imp. Palace, entrance through the corridor of the Augustine Church. In its style one of the most complete and scientifically classed collections. It was founded by Emperor Francis I in 1748, who bought the collection of Baillou at Florence. Since that time, it has repeatedly been enriched with most valuable additions. This collection may be divided into 8 departments:

- 1) The Collection of Mineralogy and Oryctognosy (with beautiful specimens).
- 2) The Collection of Crystal Specimens (2700 wooden models).
- 3) The Terminological Collection, 1611 specimens.
- 4) The Technical Collection, 2506 specimens (comprising all sorts of precious stones).
- 5) The Collection of General Geology and Paleontology.
- 6) The Collection of Special Geology and Paleontology (lower Austria and confines).
- 7) The Collection of Petrifications.
- 8) The Collection of Meteorolites and Aerolites.

This collection is the richest and most important in Europe, there is only that of the British Museum which can be compared with it. There is besides one part of the museum, comprising, above 70.000 specimens, which is not accessible to the public. This museum is open every Wednesday and Saturday from 10 to 1.

Theatres.

Vienna possesses 10 theatres and 1 summer theatre, 7 of these are in the town, the others are in the suburbs. The boxes can hold from 4 to 6 persons and are generally let to one party, except at the Theatre on the Wien, at the Karl Theatre, and the Orpheum, where a limited number of boxes only are let to different parties. The reserved-seats both in the pit and galleries rank next after the boxes in point of gentility and convenience. It is advisable for ladies to take either a box or reserved seats in the pit or first gallery as far as possible in the front row, and especially so at the theatres in the suburbs. Theatrical performances commence in Vienna at seven o'clock and generally end at ten. It is customary for gentlemen entering the Imperial Court Theatre (k. k. Hofburgtheater) and the Court Opera (k. k. Hofoperntheater) to take off their hats; in other theatres the same custom prevails, but only after the curtain has been drawn up.

The Court Theatre (Hofburgtheater), in the Imp. Palace, was constructed in 1760 and has, between the years 1837 and 1872, undergone frequent restorations. Its internal arrangement and decorations leave much to wish for as far as comfort and elegance are concerned, but its actors are unquestionably the first in Germany. This theatre is exclusively devoted to classic German plays though some of Shakespeare's masterpieces such as, Hamlet, Macbeth, Lear, Othello, and Romeo and Juliet are here occasionally acted with great taste and correctness.

Charles Theatre (Carltheater), in the suburb Leopoldstadt, Praterstrasse 31. On this spot stood formerly a small theatre built by Ch. Marinelli in 1781 for popular farces, comic spectacles, pantomimes, etc. mostly in the broadest Austrian dialect, but often very amusing. At a later period, Manager Carl bought this theatre, whose celebrities as Schuster, Korntheuer, Raimund, Krones, Ennöckl and Jäger, had by degrees died away. He had it demolished and rebuilt (1847) on the plans of Van der Nüll and Siccardsburg, and now it is mostly formed out to different good companies of actors.

The Theatre near the Wien (Theater an der Wien), Magdalenenstrasse 8, excepted the New Operahouse, this is the largest of all the theatres in Vienna. It was constructed between the years 1798 and 1801, and renovated in 1838 and 1845. Dramas, comedies, light operas and ballets, are performed here. The stage is so spacious, that 500 persons and 100 horses have appeared on it at once.

Colleges and Schools

(public and private).

In 1872 there were not less than 90 public schools under the administration of the town-corporation; these schools were frequented by 36.000 scholars (20.000 boys, and 16.000 girls) and attended by more than 500 Professors.

Fourteen inferior „Real Schools“ (Unterreal-schulen).

Seven superior „Real Schools“ (Oberrealschulen).

- 1) Hintere Zollamtsgasse 7.
- 2) Westbahnstrasse 25.
- 3) Waltergasse 7.
- 4) Grüne Thorgasse 7.
- 5) Hoher

Markt, Ankerhof. 6) Schmidgasse 14. 7) Weintraubengasse 13.

Each of these schools is connected with one of the inferior ones.

Five „Real“ Gymnasial Schools (Realgymnasien). 1) Leopoldstadt, Taborstrasse 24. 2) Mariahilferstrasse 73. 3) Landstrasse, Rasumoffskygasse 3. 4) Alsergrund, Wasagasse 10. 5) Hernals, Kirchengasse 37.

Five Gymnasial Schools (8 classes). 1) The Academical Gymnasium, Christinengasse. 2) That of the Scotch Benedictines, Schottengasse. 3) The Theresianum, Wieden, Favoritenstrasse. 4) The Gymnasium of the Piarists in the Josephstadt. 5) The Gymnasium, Fichtegasse 2.

The Pedagogium, a school for forming teachers (Zedlitzgasse 2).

The University.

This college, founded by Emperor Frederic II in 1237, and at which latin, philosophy, and literature were taught, assumed the name of University in 1365, under Rodolph IV, who instituted two professorships for medicine and the law. In 1434, under Albrecht III, the study of theology was likewise established. It now consists of 4 faculties: theology, law, medicine, and philosophy. The number of students frequenting the university may be computed at from 3000 to 4000. There are 80 professors ordinary and 80 non-ordinary, lecturers, etc.

In connection with the university must be mentioned:

The archiepiscopal Seminary (Alumnat), Stephansplatz 3.

The Imperial Royal Institution. Its object is the instruction of the secular clergy, Universitätsplatz 1.

The Clerical Seminary for students of theology, belonging to the Greek persuasion, Schönlaterngasse 15.

The Pazmanian College to prepare Hungarian students for clerical offices, Schönlaterngasse 13.

The Faculty of Protestant Divinity, Alservorstadt, Mariannengasse 25.

The Educational Institution of the Mechitarists, Mechitaristengasse 4. Here are taught the latin and Armenian languages and theology.

The Philologico-historical Seminary, Universitätsplatz 1.

The Botanical Garden, Rennweg 14.

The Central Institute of Meteorology, Hohe Warte, near Heiligenstadt.

The Chemical Laboratory, Alservorstadt, Währingerstrasse 10.

The Cabinet of Natural History, Bäckerstrasse 28.

The Pathological Museum, in the General Hospital, containing a nice pathological and anatomical collection, and above 3000 surgical instruments.

The School for Gymnastics, Bäckerstrasse 28.

---

The Medico-Surgical Academy, called Josephinum, whose object it is to form medical men and surgeons for the army, contains an anatomico-pathological collection; Währingerstrasse 15.

The Anatomical Museum of the University, Sternwartgasse 1.

The Anatomico-pathological Museum, belonging to the Hospital, Alserstrasse 4.

The Imp. Roy. Academy of the Nobles (Theresianum), Favoritenstrasse, founded in 1745 by Maria-Theresa and by this Empress exclusively destined to the sons of the nobles. Since 1848 the sons of the gentry are also admitted to it. This institution is possessed of all the necessary endowments to impart a perfect education: it has a library, a cabinet of natural history, a botanical garden, a laboratory, riding, swimming and fencing schools and one for gymnastics.

The Löwenburg Seminary, Josefstadt, Piaristengasse 45.

The Oriental Academy (Jakobergasse 3), to form young diplomatists for the East. It has a good library, a collection of oriental coins, Persian and Turkish seals and talismans.

The Academy of Fine-Arts, Annagasse 3, founded in 1705 by Joseph I., and reorganized in the years 1812, 1850 and 1872. It is furnished with a fine library, a collection of models to which must be added the collection of paintings from Count Lamberg.

The Polytechnical Institution, founded by Emperor Francis I., and built between the years 1816—1819, is situated at the Wieden, Technikergasse 13. Its front bears the inscription „To the prosperity, glory and progress of Industry, Manufactures, and Commerce, Francis I.“ Sculpture by Klieber.

The aim which this institution is called upon to attain, cannot be better elucidated than by reproducing the words which Emperor Francis I. wrote of his own hand, whilst laying down its foundation stone. They run thus: „I have laid down this foundation stone on the 14th October 1816, that it may be looked upon by posterity as an undeniable proof that the great object of my exertions has ever been to promote knowledge in all classes of society and contribute as much as possible to the enlightenment of my good and faithful subjects."

It is divided into two departments the commercial and the technical. The former for instructing youth in the various lines of commerce and trade; the latter for the application of chemical, mechanical and mathematical science to the same objects. The other sciences which are treated here are: General Chemistry, technical Chemistry, Physics, elementary Mathematics, pure Mathematics, descriptive Geometry and Drawing, Mechanics, Engineery, Geodesy, and the art of tracing plans, civil and hydraulic Architecture, the Technology of Mechanics, Zoology, Botanical science Mineralogy and Geognosy, Agriculture, and Drawing applied to the various branches of industry.

This institution may besides be considered as a repository of specimens of all arts and trades. It is to this effect furnished with rich collections of scientific objects of different kinds, which are placed under the special surveillance of the respective professor.

The library, founded in 1815, consists of 40.000 volumes on technical and commercial sciences. This institution is frequented by from 800 to 1000 students. It counts 50 professors and assistants.

The Academy of Commerce (Handels-Akademie), Akademiestrasse 12 (see p. 45).

The Veterinary School (Thierarznei-Institut), Landstrasse, Bahngasse 7, founded by Emperor Francis in 1824. Its stables, Cow-houses, sheepfolds, bath-room, collection of stuffed animals, etc., etc., deserve to be seen. It has 11 professors, and about 700 scholars.

The Orphan Asylum, Alsergrund, Waisenhausgasse 5, founded in 1742. Since 1854 the direction of this establishment, was intrusted to a religious order of monks; boys only are admitted to it.

The Boarding-school of the Ursuline Nuns, for girls of all classes, Johannesgasse 8.

The Imp. Boarding School for the Daughters of officers, founded by Joseph II, at Hernals 32.

The Boarding-school for the Daughters of the Gentry, founded by Joseph 1789. Its object its the forming of young women to governesses, Josephstädterstrasse 41.

The Boarding-school of the Salesian Nuns, Rennweg 11, for the education of young girls of distinction.

Private Schools (boarding-) for Boys: Bilka's, Josephstadt, Reitergasse 17; Bondi's, Josephstadt, Feldgasse 6; Scheliivsky's, Hohenmarkt 1; Hermann's, Erdbergerstrasse 5; Kirchner's, Neubau, Richter-gasse 9. — For the jews: Szanto's, untere Donaustrasse 27. — For girls: Hanausek's, Augustinerstrasse 10; Herrmann's, Salvatorgasse 10; Lederer's, Singerstrasse 3; Malfatti's, Teinfaltstrasse 7. — For Protestant Children: Luithlen's, Landskron-gasse 1; Schmidt's, Hoher Markt 10.

---

There are in Vienna about 120 schools for girls.

---

Schools for gymnastics: Richard Kümme'l's, Riemergasse 6; Stegmayer's, Heumühlgasse 14; and one belonging to the corporation, Liebenberggasse 4, in the building of the Horticultural Society.

Fencing-Masters: Friedrich, tiefen Graben 13, (speaks English); Albanesi, Wieden, Waaggasse 19; Hartl, Salvatorgasse 6; Herbaczek, Schulerstrasse 18; Preschel, Rothenthurmstrasse 25.

Riding-Schools: The Military Riding-school (see under „Military Institutions“).

The Winter and Summer Riding-School, in the building adjoining the imperial Palace.

The Riding-school in the building of the imperial Court stables, without the Burgthor.

Then are to be mentioned the Riding-schools of J. Schawel, Stadtgutgasse 25; that of Tippelt, Rasmoffskygasse 3; Roth, Schwarzspanierstrasse 3; Rehwinkel, Herrengasse.

Swimming-Schools and Baths. — The imperial royal swimming-school in the Prater, in the proximity of the Northern-Railway station, is accessible to the public. — The Ferdinand and Marien-Baths, near the Augarten.

From among many other bathing establishments must still be mentioned: the Sophienbad, Marxergasse 13, with a large swimming bath. The pond is during the winter-months covered over with deals and splendid balls are held here. — Vapour baths and warm vat-baths may likewise be had. The Dianabad in the Leopoldstadt, fronting the Franz Josefs-Quai has also a large swimming pond and warm vat-baths (Danube Water). The Margarethenbad, Margarethen, Wildenmanngasse, established in 1872 is a very comfortable one.

Commerce and Public Credit.

The Board of Trade and Industry for Lower Austria, in the palace of the National-Bank, Herren-gasse 14. Reports on the meetings held are published in the official News-paper (Wiener Zeitung).

The Exchange, Schottenring, is open daily from 11 to 2. It has 2 presidents, 1 secretary general, 1 commissary, 18 counsellors, 54 brokers, and 107 agents. An exchange-list is daily published at 3.

The Austrian National Bank, Herrengasse 15 and 17. This institution received its statutes and privileges from the crown on the 15th July 1817. It was established by a society of shareholders and is divided into different sections namely, the office for the emission of notes, the discounting-office, deposit-office, loan-office, and an office for loans on mortgage. The bank issues notes to 1000, 100 and 10 florins, which are current in the whole empire instead of gold and silver. The administration is composed of 2 governors, 12 directors, and a great number of clerks. — It has branch establishments at Prague, Brünn, Triest, Pesth, Leopold, Gratz, Linz, Innsbruck, Temesvar, Hermannstadt, Kaschau, Kronstadt, Agram, Goritz, Laibach, Czernowitz, Cracow, Klagenfurt, Troppau, and Salzburg. The bank-notes are made in the building.

The Custom-house (k. k. Haupt-Zollamt), Zollamtgasse 1.

The Bank of the Credit-Mobilier (Credit-Anstalt für Handel und Gewerbe), Hof 6, was founded in 1855 by a society of wealthy merchants. It transacts general banking-business and commenced its operations with a capital of 60 millions of florins. Its main object is the encouragement and support of commerce and industry, and by its aid many a railway line has been constructed. The direction of this institution is intrusted to the care of four directors and a board of administration.

The Bank of Discounts for Lower Austria (Niederösterreichische Escompte-Gesellschaft), Freieung 8, undertakes Banking-business in general, more especially however the discounting of good paper.

The Anglo-Austrian Bank, Strauchgasse, commenced its operations in 1864, with a capital of 20 millions. — Its object is the same as that of the preceding.

The Viennese Bank for Immovables, Weihburggasse 14, for the buying and selling of land and estates, lending money on mortgage, etc., throughout the Austrian Empire.

The Bank of the Belgian Credit-Foncier, Babenbergerstrasse 1.

The Austrian Savings-Bank, Graben 12, instituted in 1819. — Its sphere of operations is very extensive and this bank well deserves the amount of public credit which it enjoys.

The Ground-Credit-Bank (Boden-Credit-Anstalt), Herrengasse 8. Its Governor, Count W. Almasy.

A great number of private Banks have lately sprung up, which, having obtained the sanction of Government, are already actively employed, each in its particular sphere of operations; we name some of the principal ones:

The Depositen-Bank, Graben, Trattnerhof, with branch establishments: Neubau, Neubaugasse 37; Leopoldstadt, kleine Sperlgasse 12. This bank was founded in 1871 and enjoys of a continually increasing credit for the solidity of its operations.

The Franco-Austrian Bank, Wallnerstrasse 6.

The Austro-Egyptian Bank, Strauchgasse 2.

The Austro-Ottoman Bank, Herrengasse 8.

The Viennese Commercial Bank (Handelsbank), Renngasse 12.

The Mortgage-Bank (Hypothekenbank), Wippingerstrasse.

Insurance Companies.

Der Anker (The Anchor), Kolowratring 3. Insurance of Annuities; Life Insurance, etc.

The Company for the Twofold Insurance of Capital and Income, Sonnenfelsgasse 7.

General Austro-Italian Insurance Company, Lugeck 1.

The Austrian Gresham, Insurance of Income, etc., Tuchlauben 11.

The Apis, Insurance of Cattle, Dorotheergasse 9.

The Company of Mutual Insurance against Fire, Obere Bäckerstrasse 3.

The Danubian Insurance Company, Schwarzenbergplatz 14.

Insurance of Capital, Annuities; against Fire, Weather and Water (Azienda Assicuratrice di Trieste), Habsburgergasse 5.

The Adriatic Insurance Company in Triest. — Agency in Vienna, Stephansplatz 5.

The Patria, Life Insurance, Kärntnerring 2.

The Austria, Naglergasse 31.

The Phoenix, Riemerstrasse 2.

The First Hungarian Insurance Company, Planckengasse 2.

Vindobona, Insurance Company, chiefly on mortgage, Kolowratring 3.

The Imp. Pawning Establishment (k. k. Ver-satzamt), Dorotheergasse 17, was founded by Joseph II in 1783. — The business of a licensed pawnbroker is unknown in Austria, and all affairs of this nature are transacted at the above establishment, where any pledge not subject to breaking is accepted. Open every day, except on Saturdays and Sundays.

Bankers:

M. L. Biedermann & Co., Breunerstrasse 6.

M. Königswarter, Kärntnerring 4.

S. M. Rothschild, Renngasse 3.

Alex. Schoeller, Bauernmarkt 13.

J. Sina, Hoher Markt 9.

H. Todesco's Sons, Kärntnerstrasse 51.

Fr. Schey, Opernring 10.

G. Epstein, Burgring 13.

M. Wodianer, Tuchlauben 17.

Money Changers:

They have shut from 12 to 2 o'clock and from 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Some of the principal banks have their own offices for this purpose.

The Anglo-Austrian Bank (formerly Zinner), Stephansplatz 8.

The Bank of Discounts for Lower Austria (formerly Schnapper), Kärntnerstrasse 9.

The Viennese Commercial Bank (formerly Sothen), Graben 13.

L. Epstein, Kärntnerstrasse 3.

Voelker & Co., Goldschmiedgasse 1.

Austrian Money.

It was stipulated at the last monetary convention held in Vienna (1855), that the Austrian empire should henceforward adopt a monetary system more in conformity with the value of that of the other Confederate States of Germany. According to the new system, since 1858 a pound of fine silver is equal to 45 fl. new Austrian currency, or to 30 Prussian dollars (Thaler), or to 52 flors. 30 krzrs. currency in Southern Germany. — One Prussian dollar is therefore equal to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  Austrian florin, or to  $1\frac{3}{4}$  florin of southern Germany.

One Austrian florin has 100 kreuzers (copper money).

Austrian Gold Coins:

The Gold crown is worth	6 fl. 90 kr. in Silver.
" Double Gold crown "	13 " 80 " " "
" Ducat . . . . . "	4 " 73 " " "
" piece of eight florins "	8 " — " " "

Austrian Silver Coins:

There are in silver: coins of 2 florins; of 1 fl. 50 kr. (Vereinsthaler); of 1 flor.; of  $\frac{1}{4}$  flor. (25 kreuzers); of 20 krs.; of 10 krs.; of 5 krs.

Copper Coins: of 4, 1, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  kr.

1 Franc is equal to 40 kr.	}	according to the exchange of the day.
1 Pound Sterling to 10 fl.
1 Napoleon d'or to 8 fl.

We have already spoken of the Austrian bank-notes which, instead of gold and silver coins, are current throughout the empire. The bank not exchanging its paper for money, it results from it, that the latter, whether gold or silver, is submitted to an agio which varies daily according to the greater or lesser demand for it. Since a few years, however, the state of the Austrian bank has considerably improved, and it is generally believed and hoped that the agio on gold and silver will soon entirely subside; — during the last year the agio amounted 6—8<sup>0</sup>/<sub>0</sub>.

The Markets of Vienna.

The principal Markets in Vienna are for vegetables and fruits those on the Hof and Freiung, the Naschmarkt, and that on a place near the Franz-Joseph's Quay which is called „Schanzl“. For venison there are many shops at the so-called „Wildpretmarkt“; Fish is sold in the street running parallel to the Franz-Joseph's Quay, etc. — There is besides a central Market-Hall of recent date on the way to the suburb Landstrasse, in the space between the Railway and the Town-Park, at which all kinds of victuals can be procured at a moderate price and a Detail Market-Hall, opened in 1871 near the Parkring at the corner of the Cobden street and the Zedlitzgasse (F. 4.), a number of such halls will be constructed in the next time.

There are other markets for the purchase of hay, coals and lime, in the proximity of the Matzleinsdorf gate.

Fire-wood is sold on the banks of the Danube in the former suburbs Rossau, Weissgärber, Erdberg, and in the Brigittenau. — Wheat and Corn before the „Getreidemarkt“ Barracks, Laimgrube, and flour is to be had on the Neumarkt and in the old city.

The Market for left-off clothes and a multitude of other second-hand articles is one of the curiosities of the metropolis. Beginning with the most costly articles of dress and ending with the simple button, every imaginable trumpery article is here of cheap acquisition. This establishment is situated near the Berggasse, Alsergrund.

Military Institutions and Establishments.

The imp. roy. Military College, Mariahilf, Dreihufeisengasse (D. 5), is devoted to superior instruction for young officers needing some schooling before being admitted to the staff. A complete course of studies lasts three years.

The Military Geographical Institution (k. k. militärisch-geographisches Institut), Rathausstrasse 7, (C. 4), founded in 1839. The object of this institution is to draw up plans and maps of the whole empire; to collect for the purpose all the necessary materials both on land and sea; to provide for the publication of the said plans and maps and carefully store up all works of the kind. The Maps of this Institution are renowned as the best in Europe. Emperor Francis-Joseph has contributed much to the aggrandisement of this institution by adding to the number of geographers already-extant (1851) a corps of 44 military geographers.

The establishment is divided into 8 sections:

1. Topographical Drawing.
2. Lithography.
3. Chalcography.
4. Lithographic and chalcographic Presses.
5. Military Geodesy.
6. The Computing and Reckoning Office.
7. The Drawing Office.
8. The Mapping or planing Office.

The Imperial Medical and Surgical Academy, (called Josephinum), Währingergasse 15 (C. 3), was founded by Joseph II in 1785 and reorganised in 1854. Its object is to provide the army with skilful physicians and surgeons. The Medical course lasts 5 years, the surgical 3; the military hospital belongs to it, and a botanical garden, museum, and library are attached to the establishment. This academy will be suspended in 1874.

The Veterinary School (k. k. Thierarznei-Institut), Landstrasse, linke Bahngasse 7 (F. G. 5).

The Garrison Hospital (k. k. Militär-Haupt-Garnisons-Spital), Alsergrund, Garnisonsgasse 5. This building is contiguous to the Josephinum, and has accommodation for 900 patients.

The Military Hospital for Invalids, Landstrasse, Invalidenstrasse 1 (C. 4. 5), was established (1783) in the building it now occupies. Here is accommodation for 65 officers and 550 soldiers. Two large pictures representing the battles of Aspern and Leipzig (by Krafft) adorn its walls.

The Military Riding-School (k. k. Equitations-Schule), Rennweg 3 (F. 6); — attached to the building is a leaping-ground, which, in a space of about 130 feet, is, like a steeple-chase ground, furnished with all sorts of hinderances.

The Imperial Arsenal (without the Belvedere gate) (see p. 37), contains a church, an hospital, a large collection of arms, a barrack, a cannon and gun foundry, an open space measuring 600 paces for target-shooting, and various work-shops for the fabrication of fire-arms and ammunition. Nine steam engines of 125 horse power are constantly at work in its precincts, and it gives occupation to 2000 mechanics.

It is open every day.

Soldiers' Barracks, for infantry, the Francis-Joseph's Casern, near the gate of same name (F. 4.), built in the Anglo-Saxon style and completed in 1857, a fine building. — Another barrack in the town is the Rudolph Casern (E. 3.) situated on the Danube. — In the suburbs, the most remarkable are: one in Mariahilf, Caserngasse 1 (Academy of Engineers); — and those on the Getreidemarkt 11, — Heumarkt 27, — Alserstrasse 2, — and Mariahilferstrasse 25.

For Cavalry, Josefstädterstrasse 46, — Leopoldstadt, obere Donaustrasse 1.

For Artillery, Landstrasse, Rennweggasse 75, and one at the imp. Military Arsenal.

For the Military Train, Favoritenstrasse 26, 30; — Landstrasse, Ungergasse 49.

For the Gendarmes, Landstrasse, Löwengasse 19; — Court Gendarmes, Neubau, Breitegasse 3.

For the Military Police (Polizeiwache), Stern-gasse 8; — Wieden, Rainergasse 7; — Landstrasse, Hauptstrasse 94.

The Court Archers' Guard, is quartered up Rennweg 3 and 4; — the Trabant Guard in Neubau, Breitegasse 3.

Public Safety and Comfort.

The internal city, comprising the Ring, forms one Police district; the suburbs are divided into 8 districts, each district having a Commissary Director with a certain number of functionaries under him, a physician, a surgeon, and a midwife. The general Direction of Police (Petersplatz 10), comprises among other offices, those for foreigners, for cab and omnibus drivers, servants, and the conscription office.

The Austrian detective Police is generally acknowledged to be as efficient as that of London and Paris. During the day, policemen, whose duty it is to watch over public safety and order, are posted in different streets; At night they are replaced by watchmen who have to look to the shops and house doors on their round being properly closed and bolted.

The severity with which strangers used to be asked for their passport in former years has quite subsided in Austria. Passports are now only asked for at the Russian and Turkish Frontiers.

The omnibuses which traverse the town in all directions, occasionally causing great confusion in its narrow streets, are not allowed to stop during their drives except a few minutes at Stephen Square, Freising, Hof, Neumarkt and Hohenmarkt.

When driving through Vienna and its environs the coachman must keep on the left hand side of the street or road, and drive past any carriage before him to the right. — The doors of private houses are closed at 10 o'clock p. m. Any body returning home after that time must pay the porter 10 krs. Dogs must not be allowed to run about the streets without wearing a wire muzzle.

Fire-men and Fire-engines, Hof, in the civil Arsenal. — In this establishment 7 large fire-engines, 27 water-carts, 50 fire-men, and 3 sweeps are always in readiness to answer the fire-bell of St. Stephen from whose belfrey a watchman by means of an electric telegraph gives the alarm, and signalizes the direction in which the fire has broken out; this takes place during day time by means of a red flag being hoisted up, and during the night by a lighted lantern.

The Establishments for supplying the Town with Water are, comparatively speaking, few. They mostly have to take their supplies partly from distant fountains, and partly from the Danube. Some of the water used in Vienna has to pass through 16.000 pipes before it reaches its destination. — Owing to this scarcity of water, Emperor Ferdinand caused a new water conduit to be constructed 1838, which bears the name of that monarch (Kaiser Ferdinands-Wasserleitung).

Still in the course of 1873 Vienna will be supplied with excellent water from the foot of the „Schneeberg“, for this purpose a gigantic Aqueduct, 12 german miles long, has been constructed at an expense of more than 25,000.000 florins.

The Gas Illumination of Vienna (offices Bauernmarkt 8, and Erdbergerlande 14), is supplied by a branch of the London Imperial Gas Company; — the gazometers are in the suburbs Erdberg, Rossau, and Fünfhaus.

Prisons.

The Police House-of-Detention (k. k. Polizeihaus), Sterngasse 8. — A place for punishing trifling offences.

The Jail for the Punishment of Crimes (k. k. Strafgericht und Criminal), Rathhausstrasse, for such criminals who have been sentenced to one year's imprisonment and for those who are still awaiting the verdict of the Court.

The Court of Justice itself and an hospital for the delinquents are comprised in the building, which can accomodate 350 criminals and 170 patients.

Hospitals.

The General Hospital (k. k. allgemeines Krankenhaus), Alserstrasse 4, was founded by Emperor Joseph II in 1783, and considerably enlarged in 1835. It is built on an area of 20,500 square feet, has a chapel, 104 rooms for the sick with 2000 beds, 60 private rooms, a pharmacy, baths, above 50 physicians and 400 nurses in attendance. The first class treatment for patients including private room, board, medicaments and physician's fees, costs daily 4 fl.; 2<sup>d</sup> class treatment 2 fl.; — 3<sup>d</sup> class, for Austrians 66 kr., for strangers 86 kr.

In this establishment centre the various clinics of the university who are at liberty to choose any particular patient, the progress of whose illness may be interesting for them to watch, and who is accordingly transferred to a particular clinic, where he is taken care of. Connected with the Hospital are two other Establishments viz, a Lunatic Asylum (Irrenhaus), and a lying-in-hospital.

The Lunatic-Asylum, Alsergrund, Lazarethgasse 14, constructed in 1851 by Architect Fellner after the plan of Nadherny. This building with dependencies, covers an area of 60.000 square fathoms and has cost above one million of florins. Its internal arrangement and organisation is in perfect accordance with its vastness. Here are to be seen: a chapel (stained window-panes by Geyling), drawing-rooms furnished with pianos, billiard-tables, and such working implements as may contribute to divert the minds of its inmates. The work done by the patients is sold and they are benefited with the proceeds of the sale. — 500 Lunatics can find accomodation in the building, and the charge made is according to the class they belong to, for inst.: 1st class with room to one's self, daily 3 fl.; — 2<sup>d</sup> class, a room for two, daily 1 fl. 50 kr.; — 3<sup>d</sup> class sleep in dormitories containing at least 6 beds each, and pay 80 krs. daily.

The Lying in-Hospital (Gebäranstalt), furnished with 30 beds for the three classes into which it is divided; — the first class patients pay 3 fl. 50 krs. a day; — the second class, 2 fl., and the third class, 1 fl. a day. Poor women are admitted without payment, but they are obliged to serve afterwards for some time as wetnurses in the foundling-hospital connected with it.

The Wieden District-Hospital, Favoritenstrasse 32, contains 900 beds and tends annually between 7000 and 8000 patients.

The Rodolph Hospital, Landstrasse, Rudolfsgasse, dates from 1864. It was built on the plan of Horky and has accomodation for 1000 patients. This establishment is nicely situated and so well distributed and conveniently arranged that it leaves nothing to wish for.

The Hospital of the Brothers of Charity, Leopoldstadt, Taborstrasse 16, has annually the care of 4000 patients of different religious persuasions.

Hospital of the Sisters of Charity, Gumpendorferstrasse, tends annually above 1000 patients. The treatment is here homeopathical.

The Hospital of the Ladies of the Elizabethan Order, Landstrasse, Hauptstrasse 4, admits only female patients, who have nothing to pay for the assistance they receive.

The Institution for sick Clergymen, Landstrasse, Ungargasse 40.

The Hospital for Tradesmen's Clerks, Alsergrund, Reitergasse 1. A comfortable place with a large garden. Clerks who pay 2 fl. 10 krs. annually have the right of admission whenever they get ill; — Such as are rendered incapable of work, receive a monthly sustentation of 12 fl. 60 krs.

The Garrison Hospital, Alsergrund, Garnison-gasse 5, has accomodation for 900 beds. Another military hospital, Kennweg 75, is annexed to the Artillery barracks.

The Hospital for the Jews, Währing, near the Währinger Linie, founded by Baron Anselm v. Rothschild, opened in March 1873.

Hospitals of the Common, Leopoldstadt, auf der Haide 15; — Wieden, Neumannsgasse 6; — Gumpendorferstrasse 106; — Hundsthurmerstrasse 77; — Josefstadt, Lerchengasse 19; — Liechtensteinstrasse 88; — Neubau, Kaiserstrasse 4 and Lindengasse 20.

Private Institutions for the Sick belonging to both sexes: Dr. Hebra's (affections of the skin), Alsergrund, Mariannengasse 10; — Dr. Löw's (maison de santé), Obere Donaustrasse 81; — Dr. Winternitz's (Hydropathic establishment), at Kaltenleutgeben, near Liesing on the southern Railway; — Mrs. Pabst's (lunatics), Erdbergerstrasse 8; — Dr. Leidesdorf's (lunatics), at Döbling (near Vienna), Hirschengasse 47; — Dr. Erbes's (Consumption), Maria-Enzersdorf; his office Magdalenenstrasse 26; — Dr. Skofitz's (electromagnetic treatment), Seilerstätte 16; — Dr. Politzer's (for children), Seitzergasse 6; — Orthopedical Establishment: Dr. Weil, Währing.

Hospitals for Children: St. Anne's Kinderspital, Spitalgasse 9; — Dr. Hügel's Margarethenstrasse 30 (gratuitous treatment); — St. Joseph's Hospital, Koltschitzkygasse 9; — Public Institutions for tending children, Tuchlauben 7 and Margarethenstrasse 25.

The Foundling-Hospital (Findelhaus), Alserstrasse 21, contains 90 beds for wet-nurses and 330 beds for children; — 16.000 children may annually be tended in this establishment. The illegitimate children of the poor are gratuitously taken care of, those of the rich must pay. The greater number of foundlings are brought up in the country at the cost of the establishment which exceeds the yearly amount of 700.000 flors.

Medical-men:

Interior affections: Bamberger, Alserstrasse 4. — Duchek, Schottenring 4. — Löbel, Giselastrasse.

Affections of the eyes: Arlt, Bellariastrasse 12. — Helm, Landstrasse, Hauptstrasse 51. — Jäger, Alserstrasse 4. — Reuss, Mariahilferstrasse 5.

Women's distempers: Braun, Alserstrasse 4. — Spaeth, Schottenbastei 3.

Children's distempers: Baurnefeind, Franziskanerplatz 6. — Politzer, Tuchlauben 7. — Widerhofer, Habsburgergasse 9.

Affections of the ears: Gruber, Neuer Markt 2. — Politzer, Fleischmarkt 1.

Operators: Billroth, Liechtensteinstrasse 13. — Dittel, Alserstrasse 4. — Dumreicher, Rothenthurmstrasse 15.

Affections of the skin: Hebra, Mariannengasse 10. — Neumann, Rothenthurmstrasse 29.

Homeopathic: Rothansel, Wieden, Kettenbrückengasse 8.

Affections of the larynx: Schrötter, Schwarzenbergstrasse 8.

Syphilitic affections: Sigmund, Freiung 7. — Zeissl, Tiefer Graben 10.

Dentists: Faber, Graben 20. — Bardach, Rothenthurmstrasse 5. — Berghammer, Graben 30. — Jarisch, Bognergasse 15. — Rabatz, Goldschmiedgasse 2. — Scheff, Kohlmarkt 1. — Steinberger, Brandstatt 7.

Church-Yards: There are seven of them, situated without the town-gates and deriving their names from the gate they are next to; such are: the Mariahilf church-yard; the Hundsthurm, Matzleinsdorf, St. Marx, and Nussdorf burial-grounds. That of Matzleinsdorf contains a fine chapel and the tomb of Gluck († 1787). The church-yard for the Protestants is situated in the vicinity of Matzleinsdorf, and that for the Jews near Nussdorf. — The Viennese church-yards are generally very simple and do not present any very remarkable tumular monuments. The celebrated Mozart's ashes lie in St. Marx cemetery, although the exact spot is unknown. Beethoven († 1827), Schubert († 1828) and Grillparzer († 1872) are interred at Währing, a village near Vienna.

Philanthropic Institutions.

The Imperial Poor-House, established by Joseph II and administered by the Municipality of Vienna, disposes of funds, which accrue to it from donations and legacies obtained from the wealthy. Here all poor persons, without distinction obtain assistance according to their wants, which latter are determined by the clergyman of the parish. On an average 18.000 persons are yearly assisted and receive in daily dispensations above 30.000 florins a year.

Other Hospitals for the Poor are: The large civil Hospital, Landstrasse, Rochusgasse 8; — the New Hospital, Lazarethgasse 2; — the Hospitals: Waisenhausgasse 1; — Leopoldstadt, Schiffamtsgasse 18; — and the Hospital for needy citizens, Währingergasse, which altogether afford relief to above 1200 poor persons, spending on them annually 170.000 florins.

Private Hospitals for needy Servants, Landstrasse, Rochusgasse 8, and Wieden, Neumannsgasse 6 (under the curatorship of the town-corporations).

The Society of Noble Ladies, for the promotion of the good and useful, Bürgerspital 1100. — They spend above 65.000 florins annually in dispensations to the needy and infirm, distribute prizes in the Parish schools, and support at their own expense a girl-school, at which all kinds of needle-work is taught.

The Orphan-Asylum, Alsergrund, Waisenhausgasse 5, is both an educational and a helping institution. It was founded in 1742 by Prebendary Marxer and transferred in 1785 by Emperor Joseph II in the building in which it is actually. Here is accomodation for 400 orphans, and about 3000 more are tended at the expense of the establishment.

The Institution for the Deaf and Dumb (k. k. Taubstumm-Institut), Wieden, Taubstummengasse 7, founded in 1779 by Maria-Theresa, has been enlarged (1822) by Francis I, 100 pupils annually find admittance in it and are educated here.

The Institution for the Blind (k. k. Blinden-Institut) admits blind children of both sexes, from 8 to 12 years of age, when in a healthy state. A complete course of studies lasts from 6 to 10 years. The number of the pupils exceeds 50. This establishment is remarkably well administered. It possesses a very interesting collection of objects invented by and for the blind.

The Hospital for the Blind (Blinden-Versorgungsanstalt) in the proximity of the foregoing is destined to the blind of a more advanced age.

The Institution for the Jewish Deaf-and-Dumb (israelitisches Taubstumm-Institut), Landstrasse, Rudolphsgasse 22; accomodation for 50 children.

The Institution for the Jewish Blind, Hohe Warte near Heiligenstadt, founded by Baron Jonas von Königswarter, opened in 1873.

Communications.

The General Post-office is situated in the old city, Postgasse 10. It has branch-offices in the Habsburgergasse 9; — Seilerstätte 22; — Landskron-gasse 1; — Maximilianstrasse 4; — Esslingerstr. 4, and in all the suburbs as well as at the general Exhibition. The letters received are distributed eight times during the day by the postmen, and numerous letter-boxes are distributed in the principal streets all over town.

The postage of a letter not exceeding 1 Loth ( $\frac{1}{2}$  ounce) is 3 krs. within the district where the post-office is situated, and 5 krs. out of this district to any part of Austria and the German empire.

A letter that has not been prepaid is likewise forwarded to its destination, but whoever receives it must pay besides the proper postage, an extra fine of 5 krs. a Loth. The Post-office is open daily from 8 o'clock in the morning till 9 o'clock in the evening.

The Central Telegraph-Office, Renngasse 5; branch establishments: at the general Post-office and the branch offices of the Post; there is besides a Private Telegraph-Office especially for the local service. — More than 40 stations are within the lines and about 50 in the suburbs.

Railroads.

most frequented railway lines in Germany and which establishes communications between the metropolis and all the most important towns of Northern Germany, Poland and Northern Hungary. It runs in a straight line to Oderberg, where it joins the Prussian Railway (in Silesia). The Direction-offices are at the terminus; — the forwarding-office (for tickets and luggage), Zedlitzgasse 5.

The Western Railway (Kaiserin Elisabeth-Westbahn), inaugurated on the 15th December 1858 establishes a line of communication between Vienna and Upper Austria and between Southern and Western Germany. It is the direct road between Vienna and Paris. Central-office at the terminus, without the Mariahilf gate; — Forwarding-office, Seilerstätte 2.

The Southern Railway (Südbahn), dates from 1837 and communicates with the south of the empire and Italy. The art displayed in overcoming the difficulties with which the opening of this beautiful road over the Semmering was attended and its picturesque position, are sufficient attractions to invite the stranger residing in Vienna to make a day's excursion to this mountain.

The Southern Railway has branch lines between Mödling and Laxenburg, and between Neustadt and Oedenburg. Its terminus is outside the Favoriten-Linie (Wieden) where the Central Direction has its seat. — Forwarding-office: Kolowratring. Not far from the Southern Railway terminus is that of

The State Railway (k. k. Staatsbahn), communicates with Hungary on both shores of the Danube, and in northern direction with Moravia and Bohemia.

The office in the city is Schulhof 6, but no tickets are forwarded here.

The Austrian North-Western Railway (Nord-Westbahn), dates from 1872, communicates with Bohemia (the shortest way to Prague) and middle Germany. — The terminus is in the Leopoldstadt, near the Augarten.

The Francis-Joseph's Railway (Franz Josephs-Bahn), dates from 1871, communicates with Bohemia (Express-trains to the renowned bohemian Bathes) with middle and northern Germany. — The terminus is in the Alsergrund near the Canal of the Danube. —

Forwarding-office: Bäckerstrasse 7.

The junction of the Northern Railway to the Southern is established by a small branch-line which traverses the suburb Landstrasse, passes before the Custom-house, crosses one arm of the Danube and part of the Prater and enters the station of the Northern Railway. — Another branch-line starting at Hetzendorf and passing through Lainz and Speising unites the Southern to the Western Railway.

Steam-Navigation on the Danube.

The Central-Office and Direction, Landstrasse, Dampfschiffgasse 2, dates from 1830 when the company began active service with only one steam-boat. They now dispose of 120 paddle steam-boats, 30 screw steam-boats, 522 iron boats for the conveyance of goods, and 16 iron transport-boats for conveying cattle. — The service of the boats extends on the Danube from Donauwörth to Galatz, on the Theiss, from Tokay, on the Save from Sissek, and on the Drave from Esseg, to the very mouth of these various rivers.

The company has besides, in conjunction with the Austrian Lloyd and the Czernawoda-Kustendje line, organised a quick and direct line of communication between Vienna, Pesth and Constantinople, and is likewise connected with the Russian company of steam-boats, which take up passengers at Galatz and conveys them over to Odessa.

Steam navigation on the Danube has, like the Austrian Railways, been got up by a company of Shareholders.

The landing-place for steamers sailing up the Danube is Nussdorf; — for those sailing down the river, it is at the Kaisermühlen. Passengers wishing to sail up the Danube are conveyed to Nussdorf on small boats that are stationed along the Franz-Joseph's quay. Passengers wishing to sail down the Danube are conveyed in small boats starting from the Weissgärber to the Kaisermühlen.

Since 1873, 10 small steamers are plying every hour between the Maria Theresiabrücke, and the Josepfsbrücke at the Prater. Every two hours a steamer plies between Klosterneuburg and Kaiser-Ebersdorf.

Hackney-Coaches, Cabs, Omnibuses.

Hackney-coaches (Stadt-Lohnkutscher), without a number, are to be procured at the society: Miethwagen-Gesellschaft, Giselastrasse 4. The charge for the hire of such a coach with four seats, for half a day is, within the town-gates, 5 flor.; outside the town-gates, 6 to 8 flor., and 1 flor. to the coachman.

The Vienna cabs enjoy, on account of their celebrity, no small celebrity, and the cabmen are not only most able drivers, but they are so well acquainted with the town and suburbs that the most implicit reliance may be placed in them. The cabs are numbered and stationed at their respective stands along some of the principal thoroughfares from 7 o'clock a. m. till midnight. — Although a list of fares is affixed to the internal part of the coach, it is advisable to agree before hand with the cabman as to the amount of fare he will charge, particularly so when for a long drive.

The usual rate of fare charged is as follows:

An hours's drive . . . . . 1 fl. — kr.
 For each extra half an hour's drive . . . — „ 50 „

This charge holds good for any time of the day between 7 o'clock a. m. till 11 o'clock p. m.

From 11 o'clock in the night till 7 o'clock in the morning the rate is the half more.

The one-horse cabs are termed Comfortables (they serve as a substitute for Hansome cabs). A list of fares is likewise (according to time, not to distance) affixed to the interior of the coach.

A quarter of an hour's drive . . . . . 40 krs.

Half an hour's drive . . . . . 50 „

For each extra quarter of an hour's drive 20 „

(at night, i. e. from 10 o'clock p. m. till 6 o'clock a. m. 45 kreuzers).

One minute past a quarter of an hour is considered as a new quarter of an hour, and must be paid consequently.

Whenever a cabman pretends more than his fare, uses coarse language, or in any way behaves rudely to a stranger, the best thing is not to pay him at all, but write down the number of his cab and cite him before the police (Petersplatz 10), where it is sufficient to reveal the number of the cab. The two parties are then summoned to appear the next day, and the cause of disagreement between them is amicably settled by the Commissary of Police.

Omnibuses traverse Vienna in all directions and are extremely numerous, perhaps too numerous for the comfort of loiterers. Therefore they are not allowed to halt in any of the narrow streets of the city in order to take up passengers, except at Stephansplatz, at the Hof, at the Freiung, and at the Petersplatz; — their fare is 12 krs.; — to the Exhibition 20 krs. — There are above 1500 omnibuses in Vienna. Those that ply between the town and the railway stations have their stand in Stephansplatz.

The omnibuses plying between the town and the beautiful environs of Vienna, which in summer are very much resorted to, are likewise very numerous and are stationed at the following places:

- For Döbling, at the Hof, Freiung.
 „ Dornbach, at the Hof, Judenplatz.
 „ Gersthof and Pötzleinsdorf, at the Freiung.
 „ Grinzing, at the Hof.
 „ Hainbach, at the Neumarkt.
 „ Heiligenstadt, at the Freiung.
 „ Hetzendorf, at the Lobkowitzplatz.
 „ Hietzing, at the Neumarkt, Stephansplatz, Peter.
 „ Hütteldorf, at the Neumarkt or Lobkowitzplatz.
 „ Kierling, at the Minoritenplatz.
 „ Klosterneuburg, at the Minoritenplatz.
 „ Mauer, at the Lobkowitzplatz.
 „ Neuwaldegg, at the Hof, Judenplatz.
 „ Nussdorf, at the Hof, Minoritenplatz.
 „ Penzing, at the Neumarkt and Peter.
 „ Schwechat, in the Johannesgasse.
 „ Sievering, at the Hof.
 „ Simmering, at the Stephansplatz and Wollzeile.

Von St. Veit, at the Neumarkt.

The fares are affixed to the interior of each omnibus.

The Tramway plying between the Praterstern and Hietzing, Dornbach and Döbling, traverses the Ringstrasse and the Franz Joseph's-Quai. Since 1873 there are the following embranchements: from the Stubenring passing the Radetzkybrücke and Sophienbrücke to the Rondeau in the Prater; from the Schwarzenbergplatz to the Terminus of the Southern Railway; from the Nussdorferstrasse, passing the Terminus of the Franz Joseph's-, the North Western- and the Northern Railway to the Praterstern.

The waggons set off in very short intervals to all directions; the fare from the Praterstern to any point within the town-gates is 10 kr.; to Hietzing and Dornbach 20 kr.; to Döbling 15 kr.

Porters. At every corner of the main thoroughfares are stationed several of these men whose occupation it is to be sent on errands for the small retribution of from 20 to 40 kreuzers, according to distance. On being employed, they must give their employer a mark bearing a number and this number must correspond to that they wear on their coats. Twenty kreuzers is the usual charge for any message or errand within district. The offices of the chief institutions are: Löwelstrasse 17 (Folkmann); — Bäckerstrasse 14 (Express).

Porters attached to the different hotels (Lohn-diener) charge 2 fl. for half a day's attendance and 4 fl. for the whole day. Sent on an errand, the charge varies from 40 to 50 krs., according to distance.

The best Austrian Wines are: the Gumpoldskirchen, Bisamberg and Vöslau; they are not unlike Hock-Wine. The Hungarian wines are very strong and although wholesome in Hungary, they do not agree with the climate of Vienna. Persons fond of these wines will find different sorts of them in the Esterhazy-Cellars (Haarhof) open daily from 11 to 1 and from 5 to 8. Comfort is not to be looked for in these premises, which are however visited by numerous foreigners.

Confectioners.

Demel, Michaelerplatz 3.

Gerstner, Kärntnerstrasse 5.

Holl, Freyung 9.

Kriegler, Rothenthurmstrasse 22.

The Environs of Vienna.

The environs of the Austrian Metropolis may be said to be surpassed in beauty only by those of Naples or Constantinople.

The irregular oval plain on which Vienna is seated is bounded to the east by the Carpathian mountains and to the west by the undulating hills of the Kahlenberg, Leopoldsberg, Cobenzel, etc. Northward of the town flows the Danube. The wooded hills on the right bank of the river greatly serve to embellish the landscape, whilst on the left, which in a picturesque point of view offers nothing remarkable, the vast plain of the Marchfeld discloses itself to view. It was on this very Marchfeld that the fate of the empire more than once was decided, and here many a bloody contest between Ottokar, king of Bohemia and Rodolph of Habsburg, and the battles of Aspern, Essling and Wagram have been fought.

Owing to the excessive heat and very unpleasant dust which in summer are prevalent in the town, most of the Viennese families who can afford it spend the summer months in the country. Thus it is that the villages situated at a small distance from the Capital boast in summer of a mixed population, viz. of citizens and peasants, who by-the-by do not always live on the best terms. The railways or omnibuses will take the stranger to any of these places (see for omnibuses page 115).

The first place the stranger should visit is Schönbrunn and its Imperial Palace, whither plenty of omnibuses, starting every quarter of an hour from Petersplatz, as well as the Tramway will convey him. The actual building was built by Maria-Theresa (1744). The imperial palace contains 1440 rooms and 140 kitchens.

The park, in the taste of that of Versailles, is always open to the public. Behind the pond rises the „Gloriette“ from the top of which a beautiful view of the town may be obtained. Here are a menagerie and a botanical garden to be seen; the latter was originally established by Francis I, in 1753 and contains very extensive hot and green-houses.

To the right of Schönbrunn lies Hietzing which, with its splendid villas, is in summer the most frequented place of resort for the fashionable world, and, being mostly occupied by wealthy merchants and some of the higher nobility, can hardly be called a village. There is a public walk, a celebrated coffeehouse, baths, a theatre, eating-houses with gardens attached to them, viz. Dommayer's Restaurant and Schwender's „Neue Welt“, where in summer an excellent band plays every day, besides many other divertissements which attract every evening thousands of visitors. — Facing Schönbrunn to the north is Penzing, a village nearly as large as Hietzing though not so fashionably frequented. — It contains however several houses and gardens of equal elegance and beauty, and has likewise a very commodious bath-house.

The other villages in the vicinity of Schönbrunn which as places of country residence should be mentioned here, are: Ober- and Unter-Sanct-Veit, Baumgarten, Lainz, and Hetzendorf and a little more distant to be reached by the western Railway the are the places beautifully situated in the vicinity of the Wiener Wald: Hütteldorf, Mariabrunn, Weidlingau, Purkersdorf, Pressbaum, Rekawinkel. From Mariabrunn there is to be made a very agreeable excursion to Haimbach, a village, consisting of only a few houses, entirely hidden in the midst of a large forest. In the proximity of Haimbach are the Sophien-Alps and the Tulbingerkogel two mountains from the summits of which a most magnificent view of the surrounding woody country may be had.

The Southern Railway, after Hetzendorf, passes through Mauer, Kalksburg, Rodaun, Perchtoldsdorf with its gothic church, and Brunn all of them villages situated at the foot of the hills which extend to the South-west of Vienna and present huge blocks of calcareous rocks disseminated here and there amid the trees of the forest and the luxuriant vineyards which cover them. Beyond Rodaun, and winding in among the mountains to the right, is the wild and solitary valley of Kaltenleutgeben. The woody neighbourhood beyond Kaltenleutgeben is so beautiful that it has not unaptly been compared to the lower parts of Switzerland and Savoy.

A great number of omnibuses and the Tramway establish a communication between Vienna and the villages west of Vienna, such as: Dornbach, with its beautiful park, the property of Prince Schwarzenberg, Neuwaldegg, Pötzleinsdorf and Gersthof. The valley of Dornbach is, owing to the delightful position it occupies, reputed to be one of the most enchanting spots in the vicinity of Vienna. Döbling, Sievring, Grinzing and Heiligenstadt form another series of villages at the foot of the mountains Kahlenberg and Leopoldsberg, whose sides like the greater part of the adjacent country, are covered with vineyards, while their summits are crowned with woods and dwelling-houses. On the top of the Kahlenberg stood in former times a convent of Camaldule monks; since 1873 there is established an hotel which commands a splendid view. The Leopoldsberg, 1356 feet high, boasted under the Romans of a fortress which was at a later period destroyed by hords of barbarians. The Margraves of Babenberg at different epochs caused a fortified castle to be erected on the same spot, which was subsequently demolished to prevent the Turks from using it as an entrenchment. Leopold caused a chapel to be built here, but the same was subsequently destroyed by the Turks in 1683 and rebuilt in 1693. From the gallery of the chapel and the terrace of the castle a most beautiful view of the town, some of its environs, and the Danube winding its course through the landscape, may be gained. Nussdorf is situated at the foot of this mountain and on the banks of the river; a little higher up the Danube is the Terminus of the new Railway which communicates with the Kahlenberg. — Klosterneuburg, possessed of a monastery of Augustine Prebendaries, contains a great many artistical and historical curiosities, and higher up the river, the ruins of Greifenstein are worthy of notice. From the heights of the hills Kobenzl, Himmel and Hermannskogel a beautiful view may likewise be obtained of Vienna and its environs.

With these heights, the valley of Kirling, and Weidling we terminate our tour through the interesting places in the country surrounding Vienna, though not without previously directing the attention of the traveller to the wonders of the Semmering and Schneeberg (mountains), the latter 6500 feet above the level of the sea. Although this part of the country is too distant to be annoverated among the sites in the vicinity of the metropolis, yet communications have been rendered so easy by the Southern Railway plying between them, that the traveller should not leave Vienna without seeing them; — the Simmering on account of the objects of art it possesses, and the Schneeberg on account of the splendid view which may be obtained from its glorious crest.

A branch line of the same railway will take the stranger to Mödling, an ancient town possessing two interesting old churches; thence, in an eastern direction, to Laxenburg one of the imperial summer residences generally known on account of the splendid palace and park it contains. Here are to be seen: the Löwenbrücke (Lion's bridge), the Fischerdorf, the Forsthaus, the Rittergau, with the knight's monument, dating from more than 6 centuries, the Rittergruft, the Franzensburg, where a great many historical curiosities are stored up, a large pond, etc. From Mödling, in a south-eastern direction, lies the Brühl, a most romantic valley, between two rows of high rocks surmounted with a forest of lofty pine trees. On several of its heights artificial ruins have been constructed by express desire of Prince John Liechtenstein. Two of these ruins however are genuine, those of the ancient fortified castles of Mödling and Liechtenstein, the former of which was for some considerable length of time the residence of the Princes of the house of Babenberg.

After having passed Gumpoldskirchen, where the excellent wine bearing the same name is produced, the railway will take one to Baden, the most celebrated watering place in Austria. Baden offers but little of interest to the stranger, except the beauty of its situation and its thermal waters which seem to be a very good remedy for Rheumatism. The great number of persons who go there to take the baths does not amount to one third of those jubilant Viennese, who on holidays set forth from Vienna to explore the beautiful country surrounding Baden. Worth seeing is the „Eiserne Thor“ (Iron Gate) two German miles from Baden. — In this direction there remains only the village of Heiligenkreuz to be mentioned with its old Cistercian monastery which latter was founded by Margrave Leopold in 1134.
